Jesse Jones Reveals RFC Will Lend Russians Funds for Purchase of Military Supplies in U. S.; Reds on Cash Basis Until Resources Are Gone

Air-Borne Red Tanks Assault German Center

25 Russian Divisions Broken Up in Fierce Battle, Nazis Say.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
The Russians claimed last night that a Red counteroffensive along the central front, in which airplanes dropped tanks manned by infantrymen, already had driven the Germans out of three successive defense lines.

The Nazi high command responded with an assertion that 1,000 Red troops had been captured thereabouts in a great battle which ended in "crushing defeat" for the Soviets.

Great Battle Pictured.

One thing was clear in these sharply differing versions: that there had been a great and spectacular battle in which thousands of Russians had been landed from the air in a theater which of late had been generally quiet.

While the Red army farther north stood in the Novgorod sector in a bitter all-out defense of the metropolis of Leningrad, 100 miles distant, and Ukrainian forces in the south were locked in obscure battle with the far-thrusting Germans, Red Star went into considerable detail in reporting Soviet successes in the center.

Marshal Klementi Y. Voroshilov, commander of the Soviet northern army, issued an appeal to all inhabitants of the Leningrad district to defend the city to the last.

Hango Base Attacked.
The navy paper, Red Fleet, said also that the Hango base dominating the entrance to the Baltic sea was staving off repeated German-Finnish attacks and had made counter-raids capturing islands surrounding that southwestern tip of Finland.

Meanwhile, Finnish forces driving down the Karelian isthmus toward Leningrad were reported to have reached the shores of the Vuoksi river, which formed the backbone of the Mannerheim line in the 1939-40 Finnish-Russian War.

Capture of two cities on the river, Vuoksenranta and Raisala, was announced in Helsinki.

In the central land area, not otherwise identified, the forces of General Konev have been advancing.

Governor Replies To Teacher Attack

The Governor yesterday called attention to a United Press dispatch from Detroit referring to a fight for reinstatement on the part of three New York City and Philadelphia locals of the American Federation of Teachers.

The ousted teachers based their plea "to wield a united front against the Governor Talmadges of this country."

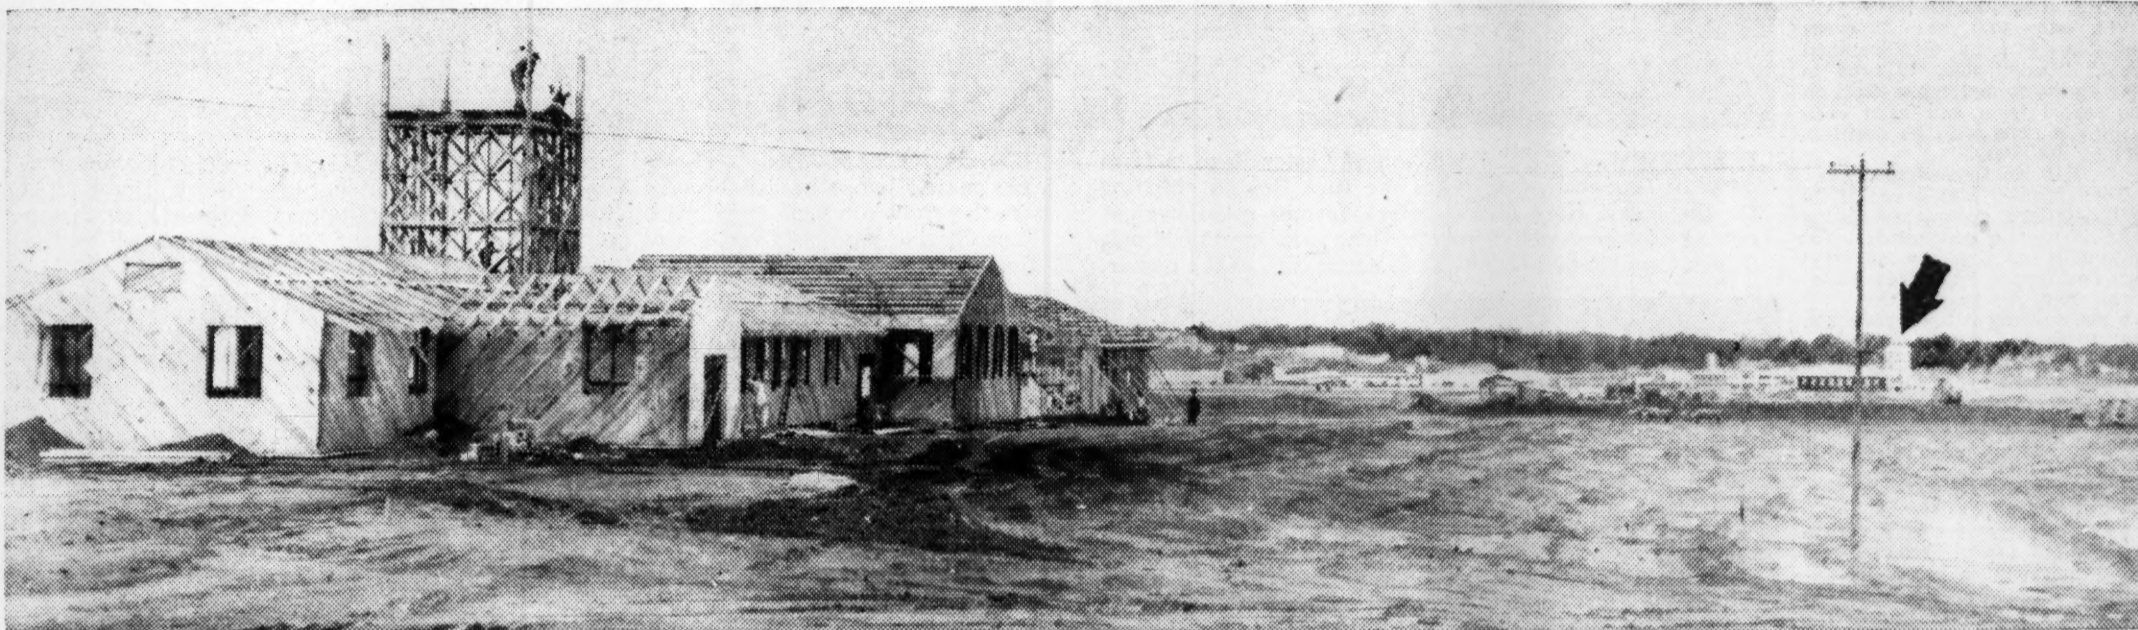

Charters of the locals were revoked June 6 after a national referendum conducted by the AFT executive council, on charges of Communistic activity. "If this is true it is the finest compliment that has been paid me," the Governor said.

Great Dnieper Dam Blown Up By Russians, Stockholm Says

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 21.—(UP)—Marshal Semyon Budenny, acting under personal orders of Josef Stalin, was reported today to have blown up the huge Dnieper river dam near Zaporozhe to cover his Ukrainian retreat, leaving a 275-mile stretch of the river a raging torrent.

Press dispatches from Stockholm published in London said that shortly before dawn yesterday Red army engineers blew up the Lenin-Dneprogz dam near Zaporozhe, upon which the industries of the entire central district depend for their power.

The Daily Mail's Stockholm dispatch said it was believed the flood waters had engulfed thousands of German troops, fleeing Soviet peasants and straggling

Another Secret Governor Can't Parley Held On Close Stations, Paper Drive He Intimates

State Supplies Said Used In Subscription Campaign.

With a sergeant-at-arms to guard the door, State Department and sub-department heads went into another closed conference yesterday in connection with the subscription drive for the Governor's political organ while at the same time it was reported state stamps and state stationery are being used to gather information of vital importance in the campaign.

A reporter for The Constitution was invited out of the meeting when he knocked on the door and was admitted by the sergeant-at-arms.

This secret session, as were others that preceded it, was held in the hearing room of the State Industrial Board on the third floor of the new state office building.

Smaller Turn-out.
Basil Stockbridge, one of the Governor's stalwarts, was presiding but the turn-out of state employees was not as large as the previous meeting.

Stockbridge first asked the revoked if he had any statement to make to the assembled officials. When asked what was taking place at the meeting, Stockbridge said: "I don't know that this meet-

Doubts His Authority To Force Sunday Closing; East Short of Oil.

The Governor yesterday said he doubted that he had authority to force all Georgia filling stations to close on Sunday to conserve gasoline—while from Washington a deputy petroleum co-ordinator announced that the long-expected oil shortage had struck the east, making more drastic curtailment than the present 10 per cent necessary.

Reserve stocks of gasoline in the east have fallen to such an extent only a 10-day supply is now on hand, the deputy co-ordinator, Ralph K. Davies, announced.

With Atlanta filling stations facing closing by order of city council, Jimmy Robinson, president of the Georgia Association of Petroleum Retailers, urged the Governor to invoke old Georgia blue laws to force all filling stations in the state to close on Sunday.

Unless all stations were closed, Robinson argued, the Atlanta ordinance would not truly conserve gasoline, but would merely force Sunday business out of the city.

His plea was opposed by Brooks Patterson, spokesman for independent oil dealers, who told the Governor that most of their patrons were working men, who got their checks too late on Saturday night to buy gas.

"I doubt if I have the authority to prevent Sunday sales," the Governor said. But I will look into it. I think I know the problem of you working men. A man's

Atlanta Quadruples Air Field Facilities

Impetus of Emergency Spurs Construction of New Air Ports for City's Use.

By HAROLD MARTIN.
Airport construction in the Atlanta area, under the impetus of the national emergency, by the first of the year will have quadrupled the facilities available to civilian and military aviation.

One new field—at Camp Gordon—has already been finished, the huge Cobb county port at Smyrna is more than half completed in one of the fastest jobs of airport building on record, and within four months expansion of the crowded municipal airport will have doubled the facilities of that port.

In addition Navy officials from the training base at Camp Gordon are examining more than half a dozen prospective sites in the immediate area with the view of constructing an auxiliary field to be used in training.

Clayton County Site.
Though no decision has yet been made, it is understood that the Clayton county site near Ellenwood which was very nearly chosen as the site of the mammoth air depot that went to Macomb, may probably be the Navy's choice.

With the possibility that other auxiliary fields will be developed by the Navy if the emergency requires the expansion of their training base at Gordon, Atlanta aviation enthusiasts foresee a city in the future ringed by airports and well on its way to becoming the air terminal of the southeast as it has long been the rail terminal.

The project at municipal airport includes the construction of two new runways, and the extension of existing runways in a project which calls for increasing the present area of the port from 287 acres to 427 acres.

Army Engineer.

Under the supervision of Major Alex O. Taylor, of the United States Army Corps of Engineers, a new north-south runway 4,800 feet long and a new southwest-northeast runway 3,400 feet long is now under construction. In addition the northwest-southeast runway is being extended from 3,500 to 4,500 feet and the east-west runway is being extended from 2,600 to 4,600 feet, with additional taxi areas on which ships may reach the runways from warm-up aprons at the hangars.

The city paid $70,000 for the additional land and the Civil Aeronautics Authority provided $463,000 in construction funds under the emergency airport building program.

The field will be available for use to commercial transport ships, as at present, and to the Army planes of the 30th Observation squadron, for whom new barracks have been built on a 20-acre tract leased from the city at $1 a year.

In Cobb county a 560-acre tract of rolling land is being scraped flat as the palm of your hand by giant machines smoothing the path for three 4,000-foot runways, an administration building and hangars. This field will be used by commercial and civilian flyers and probably also an auxiliary field for naval cadets training at Camp Gordon.

Work Night and Day.

Meanwhile, work goes ahead night and day. Herbert O. Jeffries, project engineer under Major Taylor, resident engineer for both projects, said that 800,000 cubic yards of dirt had been moved since July 17, and that the job of grading the rugged terrain would be finished within two weeks, with only 200,000 cubic yards more to move.

The whole job, including paving of the runways, should be finished within 60 days, Jeffries indicated.

J. E. Wallace, day superintendent for the J. E. Wallace Company, Powder Springs contractors, said that the leveling off process was going ahead at the rate of 30,000 cubic yards a day, with fills of 40 feet and hills of 30 feet being brought to grade.

M. L. McNeel, U. S. Granted Of Marietta, Two-Cent Slash Is Dead at 67 In Aluminum

Marble Company's Founder Is Victim of Heart Attack.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 20.—Morgan L. McNeel Sr., 67, one of Marietta's "first citizens" and one of the founders of the McNeel Marble Company, died at his home here tonight after a brief illness. He was stricken three days ago with a heart attack.

Mr. McNeel was born in Brazos county, Texas, and as a youth moved to Georgia. His father was a native of Kentucky and his mother was before her marriage, Miss Elizabeth Reid, of Putnam county, Georgia.

For a number of years he was employed by J. M. High Company in Atlanta, leaving this firm in 1892.

After leaving the High Company, Mr. McNeel with his brother, Robert Mills McNeel, established the McNeel Marble Company here, which grew to be one of the largest monument and marble finishing plants in the south. Recently he had been semi-active at the plant, which is operated by his sons.

In 1895, Mr. McNeel married Miss Ada Freyer, who survives, with three sons, Morgan McNeel Jr., Eugene and Frank McNeel, all of Marietta; two daughters, Mrs. Charles DeFor, of Fort Myers, Fla., and Mrs. George Thomas, of Marietta; one brother, Robert M. McNeel.

Mr. McNeel was a deacon in the Marietta First Presbyterian church and was chairman of the board of deacons for many years; was first president of the Marietta Golf Club; was a charter member of the local Rotary club, and for 14 years has been a member of the Marietta Board of Education.

Funeral services will be held at 5:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the First Presbyterian church, the Rev. J. H. Patton, pastor, and the Rev. Charles Wood, rector of St. James Episcopal church, officiating. Interment will be in St. James Episcopal cemetery here.

Mayes Ward & Company are in charge.

Mercury Low of 66 Expected This Morning

This morning between 6 and 7 o'clock Atlantans will enjoy the coldest weather they have felt since early July—if things turn out the way the Weather Bureau predicts.

The mercury will slide down to 66 degrees, one point lower than yesterday's minimum.

The maximum temperature forecast for today is 86 degrees with partly cloudy skies and no rain.

$52,000,000 New Plant Program Revealed by Jesse Jones.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(P)—The government obtained a two cents per pound cut in aluminum prices today in connection with a $100,000,000 program to expand production of the metal for airplanes.

Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator, said that the cut had been promised him by Arthur V. Davis, chairman of Aluminum Company of America. Aides of Jones estimated the price cut would save the government more than $15,000,000 a year.

The price of ingot aluminum will be cut from 17 cents to 15 cents per pound on shipments made after September 30 and figures for other types of metal will be cut at least 20 cents, it was announced.

Jones said the cut was arranged during conversations in which the defense plant corporation signed a contract to pay for $52,000,000 worth of new aluminum plants to be built by and operated by Alcoa but owned by the government. Cost of sites will bring this figure close to $60,000,000.

Jones explained that this was part of a program which would include similar contracts with other aluminum manufacturers. The contract with Alcoa provided for building a 400,000-pound-per-year alumina plant in Arkansas and three aluminum smelting plants with a capacity of 340,000,000 pounds a year.

Ships on U. S. Neutrality Patrol Operate Under War Conditions

(Editor's Note: Phil Newsum, of the New York United Press staff, is at sea with the U. S. Atlantic fleet's secret neutrality patrol. His first dispatch, sent through Navy channels and subject to censorship, follows.)

By PHIL NEWSOM.

ABOARD A U. S. WARSHIP WITH THE ATLANTIC PATROL, Aug. 7.—(UP)—(Via Navy Courier to Washington)—United States warships are operating under virtual wartime conditions in carrying out President Roosevelt's instructions to keep American seelanes clear.

This correspondent, among the first to see the Atlantic patrol in action, for the last 10 days has lived aboard one of those ships, covering 2,600 miles with scarcely a moment that was not a reminder of the grim Battle of the Atlantic.

Extent of Aid To Be Decided In Early Parley

Promissory Loan Contemplated for Foes of Nazism.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Jesse Jones disclosed today he was ready to put part of the RFC's huge bankroll behind Russia's armies in their struggle with the invading Nazis.

The federal loan administrator said at a press conference that he believed aid to Russia would be in the form of a cash loan, rather than a loan or lease of supplies and equipment, as is done in the case of Britain.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Jones said, "can find some way" to help Russia if required by administration policy. The administration already has virtually promised aid to Russia and the extent and the form of it may be decided in the forthcoming parley between American, British and Russian officials in Moscow.

Appropriation Involved.

The loan official did not explain why a cash loan may be the chosen method but congressmen have indicated that any use of lend-lease money for Russia might provoke serious opposition to the new lend-lease appropriation of $4,000,000,000 or more which President Roosevelt is expected to ask from congress in the next few weeks in behalf of Britain and China.

Jones, whose personal fortune makes him one of the wealthiest capitalists in the country, said he discussed the loan possibility with the Communist ambassador, Constantin Oumansky, but they had not gotten down to any formal applications or details.

He declined to estimate the amount involved, but said he "couldn't imagine it would be as big" as the $1,000,000,000 that has been rumored in some quarters.

Red Resources Unknown.
Financial help would come, Jones explained, after the Russians exhausted their cash resources, and then the amount would depend on how much material they could get out of American factories already piled high with orders for the American Army and Navy, the British empire and China. He said he did not even know how much gold and other cash Russia had, nor how long it would last.

Jones recently lent the British $450,000,000 to help them pay for war materials purchased prior to lend-lease. In that case, the loan was secured by British-owned securities of American corporations. Asked what collateral the Russians could give, Jones said, "I guess we would have to take their promissory note."

He noted that Russia has one of the smallest debts of any of the major powers. However, Russia owes the treasury a defaulted debt of $404,632,309.

Jones added that, as previously announced, he also was prepared to buy any manganese or other strategic materials Russia could sell this country.

Georgia Farm Boy Chooses Navy; Signs '2 Dozen Times'

Raymond N. Reed, of Oakwood, Finally Achieves Life-Long Ambition To Board Vessel, See Foreign Countries.

By JIM FURNISS.

A Georgia farm boy who has seen the ocean only once pulled up in front of the new Post Office building yesterday in his father's car to join the Navy.

Accompanied by Ernie Morris, a pal from his home town of Oakwood, six miles south of Gainesville, "Dody" Reed, who was christened Raymond Neolion Reed 21 years ago, left his younger brother sitting in the car while he went up to the third floor to enlist.

"Dody" admitted that his stomach "felt full of butterflies" as he walked up the steps of the building, but the feeling went away when he heard M. G. Poteet, former middleweight boxing champion of the Asiatic fleet, greet him with:

"Good morning. I see you finally got on the right track."

Ever since he can remember, Dody has wanted to join the Navy. His Uncle John was a chief commissary steward in the Navy and used to show him pictures of ships in ports around the world. Occasionally he would see pictures of Hawaii or ships going through the Panama Canal.

"A couple of friends of mine already in the Navy talked to me the other day, and that's what decided me to go ahead and enlist," Dody said.

Once inside the recruiting station, he sat down beside Billy Harmon, a yeoman second class, who asked him his name, address, age, education, where he was born, and so on.

"Dody" graduated from Oakwood High school last Christmas, where he was studying vocational agriculture. He is the eldest of five children, three of whom are girls. Since graduation, he has been working on his father's farm raising corn, cotton, and feed crops, doing the plowing and generally "helping Dad around."

After "Dody" had answered the questions Harmon asked him, Bob Bankston, chief petty officer in charge of the station gave "Dody" a pep talk about what he was "getting in for" in the Navy.

"Bankston told me that every battleship had its own baseball team," "Dody" said. "I used to play shortstop and center field on the school team and have been playing a little with an outfit in Gainesville lately."

Has No Dependents.

Then "Dody" was asked if he had notary documents stating that he had no dependents. The Navy will not take any man that has not turned in signed statements from his parents that they are not dependent upon their son for support.

"Dody" said at first his parents were reluctant to let him go, but that they realized he might do better making the Navy a career than staying on the farm for the rest of his life.

When asked if he were married, "Dody" said he wasn't.

"I've been going steady with a dark-haired, brown-eyed girl from home for about a year," he admitted, however. He said she cried a little when he told her he was going to enlist for six years, but that she let him go after he had promised to send her pictures of himself and write her every chance he got.

After he had filled out a number of blanks and applications, "Dody" went in to see the doctor, Frank N. Lewis, who pronounced him "sound as a dollar." Then there was more signing of papers, until "Dody" said:

"I think I must have signed my name two dozen times."

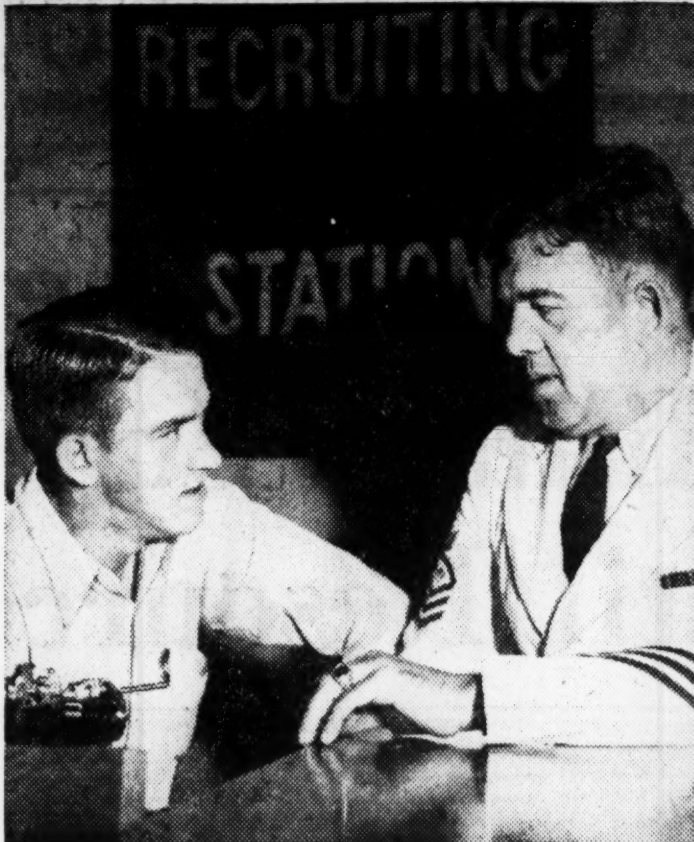

Finally, Bankston administered the oath of allegiance, the climax of the induction, which made "Dody" an apprentice seaman drawing pay of $21 a month.

Off to Norfolk.

Sunday, "Dody" will be transferred to Norfolk, Va., where he will learn Navy discipline during six weeks of training. Then he will receive a 10- to 15-day leave during which he plans to see his girl and visit his family. After his leave is up, "Dody" will be sent to one of the Navy's 10 training schools where he will learn a trade.

Four months from the time he reaches Norfolk, "Dody" automatically will be promoted to the rating of seaman second class with a monthly pay of $36 a month. Then every four months, he will have a chance to be promoted by taking examinations.

After "Dody" had taken his oath and was talking over his future Navy career with Bankston, he said:

INTERVIEW—"Dody" Reed, son of Lester Reed, a farm owner of Oakwood, Ga., takes the first step in enlisting for the Navy. Here M. G. Poteet, former middleweight boxing champion of the Asiatic fleet, asks him questions, fills out application blanks, then sends him to the doctor.

MEDICAL EXAM—"Dody's" chest is examined by Dr. Frank N. Lewis, chief pharmacist's mate. Before he can become a member of the United States Navy, Dody must pass the rigid physical examination that is designed to obtain only those men in top shape for the nation's first line of defense. Teeth, eyes, ears and all must get by the "Doc" before Dody is eligible for the next step in his enlistment.

OATH—Here Dody pledges allegiance to his country in the final step of his enlistment. Robert S. Bankston, chief boatswain's mate and officer in charge of the Navy Recruiting Station in the new post office, administers the oath, one of the most important parts of the induction, as Billy F. Harmon (left), yeoman second class, looks on. From this moment on, Dody is part of Uncle Sam's Navy. Dody has signed up for six years. Men may also enlist for the duration of the national emergency, recruiting officers pointed out. Dody said he thinks the Navy is a "good thing."

IN THE NAVY NOW—Dody's in the Navy now! On Sunday he will be sent to Norfolk, Va., for six weeks of military training to learn Navy discipline, after which he will get 10 to 15 days' leave to visit his family and girl. Then he will be admitted to one of the Navy's 10 training schools, where he will have a chance for promotion every four months, with pay increases.

Governor Hurls Pay-Cut Threat In College Row

Will Slash Professors' Salaries in Half, Executive Says.

The Governor said yesterday that if the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools removes Georgia's state colleges from its accredited list, he will cut the salaries of the professors in the colleges in half.

The association recently appointed a committee to investigate whether there was any political interference in Georgia's University System after the State Board of Regents voted not to rehire two educators whom the Governor accused of advocating racial co-education.

Members appointed to the committee were O. C. Carmichael, chancellor of Vanderbilt University; Richard C. Foster, president of the University of Alabama; and Alex Guerry, chancellor of the University of the South.

Talmadge asserted that "there ain't no danger" that Georgia's colleges will be stricken from the accredited list. If they were, he added, it would only mean that the state would save some money.

He explained that he already had advised Chancellor S. V. Sanford that in such an eventuality he would slash the salaries of all professors in half. "They wouldn't be worth as much," he said.

Without elaboration, the Governor added that the professors were the only persons who could bring about the removal of Georgia colleges from the accredited list.

Discussing what he considered the most essential requisite for a professor, Talmadge said he thought character was the main qualification. This, he continued, was more important than any number of degrees, or all other qualifications put together.

He said he believed that David

Candler Defends Regent Action In Ouster of Two Educators

'Certain Highly Learned Gentlemen Are Trying To Take Away Credit of University System,' Commissioner Declares.

Scott Candler, DeKalb county commissioner and a Talmadge appointee to the Board of Regents, charged yesterday that "certain highly educated gentlemen are trying to take away the credits of the University System," and he said Georgia's educational system is being jeopardized because they are "guilty of the sin of meddling."

Defending the board's recent action in firing two educators because they "didn't teach things the south believes," Candler declared, "there is a movement, gaining headway in many places, to bring the races together in southern schools and colleges."

"We can't serve two masters—education and the foundations. We have got to choose between them," he said in a speech before the Decatur Rotary Club.

Two weeks ago before the club, Dr. J. R. McCain, president of Agnes Scott College, had assailed "a system which makes the Governor a dictator of educational policy" and the Board of Regents "a rubber stamp."

McCain sat in the audience as Candler struck at "some learned gentlemen who never make a mistake," and declared that "it is not very good grace for any privately endowed institution or any head of such an institution to attack the University System of Georgia."

"Every private institution is under obligation to the state of Georgia. The Board of Regents' action, whether they made a mistake or not, has not done as much harm as some of these learned gentlemen," he said.

"The University System of Georgia will remain a great institution long after the Southern Association has been forgotten. They are threatening us, and may take us off the list. But we will get back on."

"I don't know why they want to take away our credits. It won't punish me or the Governor or the Board of Regents. It will only hurt our boys and girls. It won't ruin us, but it will only make it hard, if any of you know these men I wish you would ask them to help, not destroy our institutions."

"I know 90 per cent of you think that the Board of Regents' action in putting a finger on those two men was unwarranted, and that there was no evidence against them. But I wish you could see the books they are interested in and some of the books they are teaching. You wouldn't let your children read them."

for the things he has done to improve the University System, such as the enlargement of the medical school at Augusta this year so that 25 more students can be trained annually.

"It is easy to understand why one Atlanta paper is so much against the Governor. It is owned by an influential gentleman from Ohio, where the Negroes hold the balance of power."

Candler said he believed that most members of the Board of Regents are "honest men and good men."

"I know I did what was right, and I would do the same thing again," he said.

"It wasn't the people of Georgia on trial in this matter. It was the foundations."

Candler charged that "a great deal has been said that is not true" in the present controversy, but added "I will not go into this for fear of hurting some people or institutions which I respect."

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Organization of a defense protection unit to fight bomb fires or other disasters in the rich east Texas oil field was announced today by Julian Capers, Jr., assistant director of the regional office of civil defense.

The unit is composed of 10 battalions of approximately 1,800 men and 76 officers. All are workers in the field who volunteered.

Debt-Burdened Man Held Back In Fight for Success

Relief From Nagging Bills Needed for Confidence, Efficiency

Worry over numerous nagging debts is one of the most discouraging things in the world. Many capable men are hindered in their struggle to achieve success by not having enough ready cash to meet the demands of unsatisfied creditors.

A simple solution to this sort of situation has been worked out by the Southern Security and Investment Company, located on the 4th floor of the 22 Marietta Street Building. Cash in amounts ranging from $50.00 to $1,000.00 is immediately available to almost anyone who has a job. With this money, old bills can be wiped out, and the monthly repayment on the new loan is small enough to be handled easily out of regular income. Security for such a loan can be a plain note, endorsement, auto, furniture or almost anything of value. Terms can be arranged up to two years, and loans can usually be refinanced to provide additional cash if needed. Interested persons are invited to visit the friendly "Southern Security" offices for further information or advice without obligation.

This is one of a series of advertisements inviting the people of Atlanta to take advantage of the sound, businesslike solution to financial problems worked out by the Southern Security and Investment Company.

By LUKE GREENE.
J. E. B. Stewart, director of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, yesterday accused organized labor and Congressman Robert Ramspeck of being behind the action of the United States Civil Service Commission in formally charging him and one other employee of the State Department of Labor with violation of the Hatch act.

J. E. B. Stewart, director of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, yesterday accused organized labor and Congressman Robert Ramspeck of being behind the action of the United States Civil Service Commission in formally charging him and one other employee of the State Department of Labor with violation of the Hatch act.

These charges were disclosed along with the announcement by A. L. Henson, assistant attorney general attached to the Labor Department, that the state would contest the constitutionality of the federal statute.

Stewart was charged in 13 separate counts of advising, commanding and attempting to coerce employees to contribute a part of their salaries to a campaign fund in connection with the general election of November 5, 1940.

All counts were similar in content and were generally summarized in the accusation that Stewart "did take an active part in a political campaign in that he collected, received, disbursed and otherwise handled contributions made for political purposes, from employees."

Employees' Fund.
Henson said similar charges had been filed by the commission against Rex P. Huffman, an employee of the accounting department. He added that Huffman was accused of being the treasurer "of a little fund we have to buy flowers for sick folks and things our budget won't take care of."

"That's the fund these people contributed to," Henson added. He said the Civil Service Commission was attempting to say the funds were used for politics.

Stewart, who has announced he will be a candidate for congress against Ramspeck, issued the following statement:

"I am surprised that Mr. Ramspeck would be a party to such a diabolical scheme. Must a person be subjected to the humiliation of being falsely accused and intimidated simply because of the desire to become a candidate for public office?"

"This political effort to smear my reputation was conceived in the minds of well known leaders of organized labor because of my stand against labor racketeering on national defense projects. I did not believe then, and I do not believe now, that one cent should be taken from the mouths of these poor people for the privilege of working for the government which they themselves pay taxes to support."

Promises Fight.
"I believe these unscrupulous individuals are leading organized labor down the road to destruction. My fight against them will not cease. It will be intensified. I believe the people object to the greedy and selfish attitude taken by these men because their attitude is detrimental to the best interests of the nation as a whole."

Under the federal Hatch act federal employees are prohibited from engaging in specified political activities. The Labor Department is financed largely by federal funds and it established a merit employment system in accordance with federal regulations.

Henson said he considered the act unconstitutional and asserted that in Georgia and other southern states it was as worthless as "the label on an empty tomato can" because party primaries were exempted except for minor exceptions. He added that a federal district judge in Florida recently had upheld this view.

United States Attorney Lawrence Camp declined to comment on this judicial view of the Hatch act but cited a ruling of the United States supreme court under which, he said, the Hatch act can be enforced in the primary elections of congressmen and senators.

"I imagine it would apply to presidential primaries also," he said.

Henson also stated that the statute did not prevent employees whose salary is paid in whole or part by the federal government from soliciting subscriptions to the Governor's political publication.

Refuse to Answer.
When the federal commission attempted to take depositions last week in connection with its charges, Henson said, Stewart and Huffman refused, on his advice, to answer any questions or respond to a subpoena on grounds they might tend to incriminate themselves and that they were not "accused of anything."

As a result, said the attorney general assigned to the Labor Department, federal officials said they would ask Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood of Atlanta, to force Stewart and Huffman to show cause why they should not comply with the commission's order.

Henson said if the commission finds the state guilty of the charges, the Labor Department is required to dismiss them in 30 days or the government will withhold from Georgia twice the salaries of the two employees for 18 months. Stewart draws $5,000 a year and Huffman $3,000, Henson said. He added that Labor Commissioner Ben T. Hulet said he would not dismiss the employees even if the commission finds them guilty.

When the commission filed its charges, July 23, after an investigation of several weeks, Henson moved to have them dismissed on grounds the act was unconstitutional and that the charges were vague and indefinite in that they did not specify what election and what state was involved.

Views on Hatch Act.
His contention of the invalidity of the Hatch act was based on the assertion that it violated the constitution by (1) making the commission the prosecutor, judge, jury and executioner; (2) making a person answerable for an offense on which he had not been indicted, and (3) vesting judicial power in a commission instead of a court.

He also contended that the act was not uniform in application, that a state could not be made to pay for the default of an employee and that the state was not subject to suit except in a case originating in the United States supreme court.

If the commission holds that Stewart and Huffman are guilty, Henson said he would seek a supersedeas in federal court to prevent the order from becoming effective. He said he would raise the constitutionality of the act in court, pointing out that the commissioner's orders were subject to federal court review.

Short Cotton Crop Predicted in Toombs

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
VIDALIA, Ga., Aug. 20.—Cotton crop observers in this section have reduced their estimates of total yield for 1941, in Toombs county from 6,000 bales to less than 5,000 bales. The deterioration is charged to boll weevil ravages and this opinion is confirmed since picking became general. The pickers say they find many soft bolls which will not produce any lint.

Ginnings are slow for the season and W. F. Jenkins, Vidalia ginner said today that the crop could easily drop to 4,000 bales for the county.

FBI to Conduct Poker for Army New Classes Morale Rouses In U.S. Defense Comment Here

Officers of State To Receive Instructions on Procedure.

Law enforcement officers of Athens, Valdosta, Thomasville, Albany and Macon will receive instruction in the latest developments and procedures in the investigation of National Defense matters, F. R. Hammack, special agent in charge of the Atlanta office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced yesterday.

The first conference of the new series for the third quarter is scheduled at Athens on August 29 and will be followed on September 9, 10, 11 and 12 by conferences at Valdosta, Thomasville, Albany and Macon, Hammack said.

"Under this plan, which is being followed throughout the United States under the direction of the FBI field offices, all law enforcement agencies will be welded into a widespread, yet coordinated unit under the direction of the FBI, and will be given instructions in methods for combating espionage, sabotage and un-American activities," Hammack announced.

"It is estimated," Hammack said, "that approximately six hundred law enforcement officers will attend the conferences held during the third quarter, representing some 300 law enforcement agencies."

Officers Speak 'Unofficially' About General Walsh's Prescription.

BY CELESTINE SIBLEY
Poker playing for the good of the Army morale, the prescription of Major General Ellard A. Walsh, of Camp Claiborne, La., provoked a storm of public and Army comment here yesterday—but for publication, officers of the Fourth Corps Area exhibited: Poker faces.

They had their ideas about it but how screwy or how sound those ideas are, the boys in the barracks may never know because for the public prints the officers declined to show.

Around Headquarters G-2 (public relations and intelligence department) the idea seemed to be that it would be unbecoming for an officer in this area to comment on the remarks of an officer anywhere else. So the question was never put to Brigadier General John F. Smith, commanding officer of the area.

Foremost Question
But from there on, presented or unrepresented, the question of poker for the good of the old Army morale was uppermost in the minds and on the tongues of the men who direct the Army's activity around Atlanta.

"Swell idea," said one high-ranking officer. "I could do with a game of poker now and then myself."

"From my personal experience, I'd say General Walsh knew what he's talking about," admitted a more junior officer modestly. "When I come out of a poker game my morale is pretty high."

"Of course, I wouldn't know how feasible the general's idea is," grinned an officer out at Fort McPherson. "You see, it's against the regulations." But the same officer confessed that he felt the men in his outfit contrived to stay in practice well enough that he wouldn't care to meet them in a game outside the gates.

"Plain Nuts."

On the other side of the question, there were those who expressed the belief that General Walsh was "plain nuts."

The only official and authorized statement on Army morale in Fourth Corps Area yesterday was issued by Lieutenant Hugh G. Head, of Lieutenant Colonel John M. Fray's morale section.

Lieutenant Head also declined to comment one way or another on the poker-playing prescription, but on morale in general, he said: "Never before in history has an Army done as much in a material sense to keep up the morale of its soldiers as the American Army is doing today. Think of the service clubs, the games like ping pong, the swimming pools and lessons for those who don't know how to swim, the hostesses, the amateur theatricals and the traveling road shows with professional talent. In addition ours are the best fed and the most carefully housed soldiers in the world."

Weather Good for Cotton Crop, But Just as Good for Weevils

The Weather Bureau yesterday reported conditions the past week were favorable for the growth of cotton although not very favorable for checking the ravages of the boll weevil.

Damage by the crop pests continued rather severe throughout most of Georgia, the report showed, but bolls are opening rapidly and picking and ginning fairly active in the central and southern district.

Good stands of corn were reported, mostly all matured although much damage was caused by heavy washing rains between Atlanta and West Point.

Some farmers were putting in such vegetables as turnips and cabbage, and truck crop conditions were described as "fair to good." More rain would be helpful in the pastures.

Harvesting of peanuts already has begun in the extreme southern localities.

Crop Control Called Failure

By Tom Linder

Actual Parity Prices Urged by Georgia Commissioner.

Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder asserted yesterday that efforts of the federal government to regulate production of major crops through the AAA program had proved unavailing.

Comparing the marketing problems of manufacturers and farmers, Linder said in a statement in the Market Bulletin that "there is no way by which the farmer can regulate what he produces."

"Until a few years ago, it was the common opinion that the reason farmers could not regulate the amount of their crops was because the farmer was unorganized."

"So strong was this belief that a few years ago we instituted a system of so-called crop control. The AAA was created and the government itself undertook to regulate production of major crops."

"Time has demonstrated, however, that the government can only cut the acreage. The government is just as helpless to regulate production per acre as the farmer is."

"Insects, plant diseases and animal diseases all contribute a ma-

French Captives Anti-German

Call Cap and Major Answers; Seek a Sergeant, You Find Cap

CAMP DAVIS, N. C., Aug. 20.—(AP)—It's all very confusing—this fellow Major's name—but soldiers at this cantonment don't know what can be done about it.

The full name: Sergeant Cap Major. Ask for Sergeant Major and you'll probably get a sergeant major who is not Sergeant Major.

Get familiar and put in a call for "Cap," and a captain will answer who is not this Cap.

You get all straightened out with the captain and ask for Major and a major comes along and asks: "Was someone calling me?"

After about two hours and 17 minutes you find Sergeant Cap Major and you've forgotten why you were looking for him.

For part in determining bumper crops, short crops or crop failures.

"The production of cotton this year in large sections of Georgia will not be more than 40 to 50 per cent of the normal crop. The cost of producing a half crop of cotton is substantially the same as the cost of producing a normal crop or even a bumper crop. Obviously it follows that what would be a reasonable price for this year's crop of cotton in some sections would be far below the cost of production in other sections."

This, Linder said, was generally true of other commodities, and he suggested the farmer's problem could best be solved by establishing actual parity prices between what he sells and what he buys.

NAMED EDITOR.

Smuggling of British Soldiers Related by Jay Allen.

(This is the tenth and last of a series of daily articles in which an American war correspondent tells the story of his arrest and imprisonment for four months by the German forces in occupied France and discloses information he gleaned from other prisoners and Nazi guards.)

By JAY ALLEN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Some day I will do a book about my fellow prisoners. I liked them. They restored my belief in the dignity of human nature. They hadn't wanted war. They had made fearful mistakes but they had learned their lesson. It is no exaggeration to say that 90 per cent of all of those I met were passionately anti-German, not always sure what they were pro but definitely anti-German. Quietly so.

No one ever called them "boche." It was always "ces messieurs" (these gentlemen) or "nos invites" (our invited guests) or, best of all, "doryphore" after the famous potato plague. Sometimes it was "Fritz," but you had to be careful when you said this. The Germans don't like it. They insist on being liked. The Germans. I remember a young French adjutant. He had escaped from a German prison camp and had been caught trying to get across the line of demarcation. After some weeks he was sent back to Germany but escaped from a moving train on the way. I later learned. He said, "In July last year after our defeat the Germans could have won us, even to declaring war on Britain. We were so utterly disillusioned about ourselves, about the democratic cause. The Germans looked to us like archangels with flaming swords. They were might personified, and efficiency, honesty and even decency, or so we thought."

Know Better.

"Now we know better. Only their war machine in motion is that. Seen close up, they are corrupt as we never were, as paralyzed by administrative bureaucracy as we ever were. . . . Beneath their surface politeness we see them as they are, conquerors, pillaging France. They missed their great opportunity in failing to release our prisoners in the first two months. The prisoners are 98 per cent anti-German, though not all pro-British yet."

I remember the little lads—16 all of them and so tiny—who had come from Brest and were on their way to join De Gaulle when caught. They used to get letters from home telling of the frightful British bombardments of Brest. And they were jubilant! We had to urge caution on them.

I remember the others, whom I shall not identify even slightly, who came to me one day, slightly to two newcomers, said, "They are British soldiers. They speak a little French and Flemish. You must tell them to keep their mouths shut. The Germans won't be able to spot them if . . ." And together, over a period of weeks, we worked out ways and means and the two British soldiers went free, as Flemings.

Two Failures.

There were other "cases like that. We failed in two, one a boy who had "God Save the King" tattooed on his forearm and a Scot whose French accent would not have gotten through an open door, much less an interpreter.

I found morale highest among the Hollanders who came through, second best among the Belgians and third among the French from the north. But France was the country of the three worst hit by the corruptive propaganda of the Nazis. And they are up against both a German regime and a French administration that, in the occupied zone especially, is indistinguishable from the Nazis.

But they are coming along at a rapid rate.

I heard wonderful stories of heroism in the north in the underground organization that hides and, when possible, gets out British soldiers. In Vichy I met a 15-year-old girl, daughter of a distinguished old French family, who had made on an average of a trip a week from Lille across the demarcation line with from 8 to 10 British soldiers in tow. "The children," she called them. People who fool with this kind of business risk the firing squad.

I heard a Little Sister of the Poor who had helped get out 14 Scotch Highlanders from a village where they had been hidden in the north. They needed bicycles for the trip to the line. She stole 14 bicycles for them.

Little Sabotage Yet.

There is little sabotage as yet. The general feeling is that the time hasn't come. Repression is terrible.

The "V" campaign must have been thought effective by the Germans, for otherwise why would they have taken over the "V" for themselves? This correspondent had seen no papers for three weeks when he was released from Dijon prison three Sundays ago. On the German staff car that was to take him to Paris, he saw a freshly painted "V." He gasped. The German captain who had him in tow grinned.

"We have taken it over, smart idea, don't you think?" It didn't seem smart to me but rather an admission of the importance they attached to Gaullist propaganda. On the way to Paris we stopped for lunch. When we emerged from the restaurant I saw that someone had painted the Gaullist cross of Lorraine inside our "V." The Germans laughed it off.

SAFETY CAMPAIGN.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 20.—The Paul E. Bolding post of American Legion is sponsoring a two-week safety campaign here in advance of the opening of the public schools. Commander F. L. Elrod announces. The campaign will consist of distribution of literature to motorists, safety rules to the pupils and safety posters on poles.

Ammunition Scarcity Removes Army Maneuvers' Realism

Second Army Uses Pin- cer Movement Ef- fectively.

By RICHARD C. HOTTELET.
WITH THE SECOND ARMY IN ARKANSAS, Aug. 20.—(UP)—The Seventh Corps of the Second United States Army today effectively used in its war games the pincer movement strategy which Adolf Hitler has employed so successfully in his European campaigns.

Supported by dive bombers, the corps moved onto the town of Washington, Ark., and a ridge to the westward and were credited with capturing both after encircling them.

The pincers strategy and the dive bombers gave some semblance of real warfare to the activities today, but the bombers were far less awe-inspiring than the Stukas the Germans used at Dunkerque.

The German JU 87's are equipped with sirens that sound as they fly level and heighten to an ear-splitting scream as they dive to attack. The psychological effect of this sound is such that I have seen troops become nervous

Third Army Soldiers Fight for 72 Hours in Heat, Dark.

By LEON KAY.
WITH THE THIRD ARMY IN LOUISIANA, Aug. 20.—(UP)—The war games here would be much more realistic if the soldiers had more blank cartridges.

In most respects the Army has been eminently successful in its effort to make this year's maneuvers the nearest thing possible to real war, but when and if these troops ever get into a battle I believe they'll find the "horrors of war" include a pandemonium that makes the scattered rifle fire and limited air activity in these games seem about like the popping of a paper sack.

So far as physical activity is concerned, however, the soldiers are getting plenty of realism. In the phase of the games just closed, which sent the Fifth Corps against the Eighth in "open" maneuvers, the troops struggled for 72 hours, marching through blackouts at night and sweating and fighting chiggers and mosquitoes in 90-degree weather after undergoing a day of such attacks.

One factor that handicaps the Army in its efforts to give the troops "wartime experience except for bullets" is the lack of even blank cartridges. One staff officer told me that infantrymen are being issued only two rounds of ammunition daily, while the artillery is not firing at all.

French Envoy Tries to Soothe U. S. Feelings

Henry-Haye Tells Hull Vichy Was Unjustly Accused.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(AP) Contending that the Vichy government had been unjustly accused of planning to surrender the fleet and Atlantic naval bases to Germany, Gaston Henry-Haye, French ambassador, sought today to repair the strained relations with the United States resulting from new evidence of Franco-German collaboration.

What success he had was not immediately apparent, for Secretary of State Hull declined to make any comment on their conference.

Henry-Haye said he called on his own initiative to give Hull an explanation of Chief of State Petain's speech last week in which the aged marshal spoke of collaboration with Germany as "a long term labor" and said the French must turn themselves "toward broad perspectives which can open up a reconciled continent."

In telling newsmen of his conference with Hull, the ambassador asserted that there was nothing in the Petain address to justify an assumption that "we intend to surrender the fleet or take new military steps."

At the same time the French ambassador showed Secretary Hull and newspapermen cartoons which he termed insulting to Marshal Petain.

CARTOONS CALLED INSULTING—Gaston Henry-Haye, French ambassador (with sheaf of papers), showed newspapermen at the State Department yesterday cartoons he said were insulting to Marshal Petain. He also showed the cartoons to Secretary of State Cordell Hull just before the newsmen saw them. (Story on Page 1).

Air-Borne Red Tanks Assault German Center

vancing for three days, Red Star said. First the Russians threw tanks, planes, artillery and infantry into a titanic assault which drove the Germans out of front lines and routed them a second time when they tried to entrench farther west, it said.

Then the Russians pushed across a river and challenged the Germans' third line atop a hill. At this juncture, the Red air force dropped tanks deep behind the Nazi defenses, infantrymen leaped from the tanks and this combination of men and machine decided the issue of the moment, the Red Star account continued.

(Size of the tanks was not mentioned. The Russians practiced air-borne tank invasion in July, 1940, in taking over Bessarabia and the northern Bucovina from Rumania. At that time neutral military experts said it was entirely possible to land small tanks suspended between the wheels of big transport planes.)

Nazis Admit Attacks. The Russian action's precise location was not stated, but it apparently was somewhere between Smolensk, which once guarded the Moscow approaches, and Gomel to the southwest.

It was "around and north" of Gomel, which the Germans claimed their great victory. The Germans themselves suggested indirectly that it had been in the beginning at least a counter-attack by the Russians, and spoke of the destruction of two brigades of Russian troops "landed from the air."

Altogether, the Nazi command claimed that parts of 17 Soviet infantry divisions, one motorized division, two tank divisions and five cavalry divisions had been destroyed or captured.

Long Struggle Seen. Of the fighting on the north and south, the Russian reports were far less specific, but portrayed the Red forces as deployed about Novogorod, in a struggle which might well be long and bloody due to terrain favorable to defense.

Novogorod, ancient walled town on a hill amid swamps and bordered by the Volkov river, is in a province half covered with forests and containing 1,200 lakes—no trifling obstacles for blitzkrieg invasion.

German front-line dispatches acknowledged that Soviet troops and large tank units were fighting bitterly for their bridgeheads on the west bank of the lower Dnieper, but they pictured the Red army there as near catastrophe.

The Russians were said to have counterattacked with large formations of tanks to relieve the German pressure so that sizable Soviet units could withdraw to the eastern shore.

65 Tanks Destroyed. The high command reported successful attacks on the bridgeheads with destruction of 65 tanks.

The dispatches from the front described the Red army bridgeheads as few and far between, and the high command has said as much. Dive-bomber attacks on boatloads of fleeing Russian troops, moreover, were said to have splashed the river with countless dead.

In the southern Ukrainian fighting generally, Berlin sources claimed an aggregate of 2,500 Russian tanks and 3,700 cannon had been captured or destroyed and 350,000 Russians taken prisoner, and began to speak of the possibility of a German naval assault across the Black sea upon Batumi, the Soviet oil port at the sea's eastern end in Georgian Russia. Such a maneuver, if successful, would open the way for an attack on the Caucasus oil fields.

German military commentators, meanwhile, were regarding Odessa as a closed chapter. Its capture inevitable. Under a full-dress siege, Odessa was cut off completely from the rest of Russia both by land and sea, the commentators declared. German aerial observers reported Odessa harbor littered with the burned wreckage of ships, warehouses and wharves. An official statement said that more than 30 ships, totaling over 170,000 tons, had been destroyed in the Black Sea near Odessa and that a heavy cruiser and a torpedo boat had been damaged while attempting to protect them.

Germans held that withdrawal of any great number of men from Odessa would be impossible. The Luftwaffe was said to have demonstrated its complete domination of that corner of the Black sea.

Charles Callaway Drives His Derby Entry to Victory.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

WEST POINT, Ga., Aug. 20.—With 7,500 spectators cheering, Charles Callaway's No. 13 Soap Box streaked across the finish line this afternoon to win the unofficial Soap Box race, sponsored by the West Point News and the Chattahoochee Valley Times, and promoted by the Community Recreation department. Runner-up was Arnold Taylor, of Langdale.

Preliminary races were run to determine the champions of each of the six valley towns with the following results: West Point, Charles Callaway; Lanett, Jim Longshore; Shawmut, Jimmie Lee Smallwood; Langdale, Arnold Taylor; Fairfax, Ronald Bridges; Riverview, Jack Ware.

Cash prizes and handsome merchandise prizes were awarded all heat winners, champions and runners-up in the races, participated in by 49 boys and one girl, Imogene Speer, of Langdale.

In the West Point races, "The Atlanta Constitution," driven by Sonny Sherrill, defeated "The Atlanta Journal," driven by Aubrey Norris.

Mrs. Dunson Dies At LaGrange Home

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

LA CRANGE, Ga., Aug. 20.—Mrs. Joseph E. Dunson Sr., one of this city's most prominent citizens, died unexpectedly at her home on Broad street early this morning of a heart attack. Her death came only three days before the celebration of her 75th birthday anniversary, the date of her birth being August 23, 1866.

Mrs. Dunson, an active member of the First Methodist Church, was also interested in education and her philanthropies were widespread.

Funeral services will be conducted at the residence at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, August 21, with the Rev. M. M. Maxwell, pastor of the First Methodist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Hillview cemetery.

Survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Claude Dunaway and Mrs. Robert Hutchinson, of LaGrange; one son, Albert Dunson, of LaGrange; two sisters, Mrs. Frank P. Longley and Mrs. Julian Lane, of LaGrange.

Colonel Jones' Wife Is Dead

Mrs. Nell Jones, wife of a former Atlantan, Lieutenant Colonel Thomas W. Jones, died yesterday following a long illness at her home in Philadelphia, Pa.

A native of Omaha, Neb., Mrs. Jones had resided here until she moved to Philadelphia eight years ago. Her husband was employed with the Nunnally Candy Company here for many years.

Surviving are one daughter, Miss Nantalia Jones, and two sisters-in-law, Mrs. Tom R. Brooke and Mrs. Leonard H. William, both of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held in Arlington National cemetery tomorrow.

Shinn Returns To Law School

Dean Henry A. Shinn has resigned as head of the University of Georgia's School of Liberal Arts and will return to the Lumpkin Law School, Chancellor S. V. Sanford announced yesterday.

Shinn has been liberal arts dean since last January. His successor will be approved by the State Board of Regents at its next meeting, Dr. Sanford said.

IMPORTANT CONSIDERATIONS In Locating a Permanent Home

You should distinguish between LOTS that are being offered in far-flung outlying sections with only nominal restrictions, poorly enforced, limited control, no responsibility, indiscriminate building, and handled by selling agents with no interest in the Community other than their sales commission.

Kidney Strain May Cause Swollen Ankles and Backache

If you're feeling out of sorts, Get Up Night or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.

Worry, Cold, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids. Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 300 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating; 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation; 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee. Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this clearing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee with each package of Cystex assures you a complete refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, under the positive money back guarantee. Don't take chances on any Kidney medicine that isn't guaranteed. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 38c. The guarantee protects you.

Bacterial Count Of Milk Sold Grady Jumps

Ordinance Requiring Certification or Pasteurization Sought.

An increase in the bacterial count of sweet milk delivered to Grady Hospital yesterday caused an investigation of the dairies supplying the milk and brought a demand from a city councilman that all milk sold in the city either be pasteurized or certified. The milk tests at Grady by the City Milk Inspection Bureau, headed by R. W. Hart, showed a bacterial count ranging from 60,000 to 151,000 per centimeter. A count of only 50,000 is permissible. The bulk of the sweet milk supplied to Grady comes from the dairy of Mrs. T. E. Turner, near Douglasville. Talking to The Constitution last night over the telephone, Mrs. Turner said that immediately upon receiving a report of the bacterial count from city authorities, she began an investigation which showed that, during the hot weather of the last few days, her refrigerator had not been cold enough. She said that she at once called in a refrigeration engineer to correct the trouble. She said that she would gladly comply with all regulations of the city health department. After receiving a report on the milk tests, Councilman Paul Butler, chairman of the council's health and sanitation committee, said that at the next meeting of the council on September 2, he would ask that an ordinance be passed requiring pasteurization or certification of all sweet milk sold in Atlanta, in the interests of community health.

Germany's Hotels Become Hospitals

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—(P)—Germans were urged today to postpone their vacations until winter with the explanation that "several hundred thousand hospital beds have been installed in numerous hotels and are not available for transients."

The Frankfurter Zeitung explained the war has eliminated the favorite North Sea bathing resorts as a vacation area, resulting in more vacationers than there are accommodations in the remainder of the Reich.

Children and mothers shipped out of war-exposed cities also are absorbing many accommodations.

Scattered Rains Keep Down Heat

By The Associated Press.
Cooler weather comforted most of the country yesterday, scattered rainfall holding down temperatures despite a belt of warm air over the southern states.

Thundershowers occurred over much of Florida, south Georgia and the Carolinas. Northern areas reported bright skies.

The mercury was lower over central and eastern states with the exception of Florida where temperatures remained about the same.

Mid-afternoon temperatures included Miami 83, Tampa 90, Atlanta 82, Charlotte 80, New Orleans 81, Louisville 80, Chicago 83, Memphis 83, Cleveland 78, Boston 90 and San Francisco 60.

SPEAKER—Robert H. Scott, manager of McGann-Erickson, Inc., advertising agency, yesterday told the Atlanta Advertising Club advertising could play a vital part in national defense.

Advertising Seen as Spur to U.S. Defense

Business Must Keep Wheels Turning, Says Robert Scott.

Robert H. Scott, manager of McGann-Erickson, Inc., advertising agency, told the Atlanta Ad club yesterday that advertising could play a vital part in national defense.

First, Scott said, by turning its talents to publicizing branches of the service in which recruiting needs to be stepped up. The Navy in the last war, he pointed out, was dangerously short-handed until professional advertising men turned their talents to recruiting.

Advertising during the emergency must double its efforts to keep the wheels of business turning, for only by so doing can the wealth be created from which to draw the taxes which support defense efforts. In keeping non-defense business going ahead at full speed, advertising can serve to prevent unemployment, he declared.

Advertising, he said, also serves to prevent excessive price rises, for manufacturers are hesitant to announce publicly an upward shift in the price of their product, where without advertising, higher prices could be asked without attracting undue public attention. Tax bill: now before the house which would place a tax on outdoor and radio advertising tend to kill the goose that lays the golden egg, Scott warned, as he asked members of the club to protest passage of the bills in message to congressional representatives.

No Appeasing Iranian Army With Japanese, Ordered Ready British Assert For 'Sacrifice'

Trade Setup Called No Retreat From Far East Stand.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—(P)—Newspaper warnings that Britain's newly-disclosed arrangements for possible trade with Japan might be considered a p a p e m e n t brought hurried insistence from authoritative quarters tonight that the government was not retreating in the least from its stand against aggression in the Far East.

Recalling Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's recent declaration that kid glove diplomacy was in the discard, these sources said Britain was "standing absolutely in line with the United States and Netherlands governments and not receding a single inch from the stand taken when Japanese assets were frozen."

At the same time, these sources said that while Britain had given Thailand (Siam) no specific assurances of military aid if her independence should be threatened, "that does not mean we are not ready to take strong steps against aggression."

They said any further moves by Japan would be regarded as "extremely serious" and that Britain already had taken adequate defense measures in the Far East. Sharp-eyed critics, however, seemed unlikely to be contented by efforts to minimize yesterday's announcement of arrangements for "clearing accounts" to handle possible future trade with Japan.

The London News Chronicle said it was "nonsense" to contend that Japan would get only materials not essential to war. "The trouble is," it said, "that those who make agreements such as the proposed Japanese agreement do not recognize that Japan, like Germany, is an enemy of the cause for which we are fighting."

"Ten years of naked aggression have not opened their eyes to this fact."

Livestock Show Set Near Calhoun

CALHOUN, Ga., Aug. 20.—Plans are complete for the fifth annual livestock show to be held at the Sonarville school Friday, August 22.

This show is held each year in the interest of better livestock and poultry and to teach the agricultural students how to judge the quality of cattle.

H. W. Powers, vocational agriculture teacher at the Sonarville school, in discussing the show said: "We do not advocate livestock as a substitute for cotton, but as a supplement, for in raising livestock we are also growing more hay and pasture, adding manure to our soil, building it up and helping prevent erosion, so that livestock farming will help build our land to greater fertility rather than destroy it."

In addition to the livestock show, the Home Economics club, under the direction of Miss Mildred Craig, will have a number of exhibits on display.

Prizes will be awarded first, second and third-place winners in all events.

Family Reunions

Credit to that solid old institution, The Family Reunion, the surest means of nourishing the pride and happiness of those who need it most—the mother and father.

Families grow. The four walls that house them become inadequate. The more ambitious children dash off in response to the lures of the fascinating world beyond the horizon. The old folks, with heavy hearts, watch their youngsters move away, one by one, until the old house offers them little more than a disturbing loneliness.

Of course, there's that helpful dividend in family investment known as the letter home. It offers some insurance against abject suffering. Too often, though, the sender of that letter accepts this little act as an obligation and the letter reads like it. Those few written lines fall to answer natural questions; too many writers are just not themselves, as others know them, when they write.

Here in Georgia, the family reunion is still a popular custom, and it always should be. We argue not in an effort to restore that decadent old custom of ancestor worship, but as a most fruitful means of preserving the ties and integrity of a family.

Those lonely individuals who don't know the benefits of a spontaneous family reunion really ought to pay just one visit to some other family's reunion. That one visit restores a lot of faith in others, something that today's type of world needs badly. The sight of a 'roud mother and a proud father, surrounded by their loyal offspring, vividly illustrates the benefits of a lesson that too many ignore.

Daughter and niece and daughter-in-law and aunt and sister toil happily in deft competition over the food that each contributes to the success of the gathering. And when the results of all this kitchen labor are given the final test of taste and appetite, ideas and knowledge for the betterment of all are swapped and accepted with eager interest.

Son and nephew and cousin and uncle and brother discuss without reserve their successes or failures of the year and there, again, is a helpful swapping of ideas and knowledge that sends each on his way better equipped to meet the problems of the next year.

These family gatherings exalt the position of the woman of the household, a virtue every family needs badly. They develop an increased respect for the wife and mother and the acceptance of every child as a blessing.

Which is as it should be.

The seeds of loyalty, planted every year in a good family reunion produce a crop that never fails.

A magazine in our dentist's outer office puts the question, "how could Nazi Germany finance a great war?" What did they find out about this?

How droll, if the history of our active part in the war began with the great "Battle of Stocking Run."

If War Comes

A cheering word to the people of America who remember the shortage of wheat during the last war comes now from the flour milling industry. It is: the United States has plenty of wheat, and if the surplus runs out, there is more where it came from.

Of course, says the industry, there might be a slight increase in price—but there will be plenty of bread.

Those who were here during the last war and bit where the "war loaf" of bread wasn't, can lick their chops. This time, if war comes, they can bite and find bread. It is indeed a cheering thought.

The flour milling industry is much cheered, too—the consumption of bread, the staff of life, is expected to soar. When people are busy as in this national emergency and in war times, they eat more bread because they have more purchasing power and because they need more energy.

Soldiers need about 50 per cent more bread than do civilians. It was to furnish them this additional bread in 1917-1918 that civilians gnawed on the short "war loaf."

With war staring us in the face, it is not bad to learn that the United States alone has a surplus of wheat sufficient to carry the nation for two years.

On the other hand, there's the isolationist school that is for leaving Dakar to its own devices and fortifying Senator Pepper.

Press Convention

One of Georgia's best and most progressive cities, Toccoa, will salute Georgia's newspaper editors today with its salubrious mountain air and its generous hospitality.

The 55th anniversary of the Georgia Press Association will be as much fun as all the others have been. Practically all the weekly and daily newspapers of the state are members. The editors meet, talk, eat and attend the helpful meetings and exhibits which are on the program.

It really is a sort of family gathering. Georgia editors are editors in the very finest tradition, loyal to their communities and to the best interests of their state. They produce excellent newspapers and their editorial comment is strong and sound.

The annual meeting of the association is great fun. Toccoa is an ideal place for the meeting. Its newspaper representatives are among the best and the editors of the state will be at home with them. It's great to be a Georgia editor. And even better to attend a press meeting.

As an escape from the psychopathic characters of current fiction, we sometimes go back to those of Page 1, thus skipping the human race entirely.

Pride and Morale

There's a controversy going on here and about in this country over the morale of the Army. Some say it is high, some say it's low.

If there is room for a controversy, it is like the saying, "Where there is smoke, there's fire." All right, let's smoke it out.

Said Lieutenant General Ben Lear, he of the stern visage who objected so vigorously to soldiers "yoo-hooing" at some girls near the golf course where the general was playing: "If Army morale is low, it is because morale of the people is poor. It is terrible if they are unable to find an objective in our preparedness program."

Said Lieutenant General Walter Krueger, commander of the Third Army now engaged in mock battle: "Each unit must learn the team spirit and gain confidence in its teammates. This comes only as the result of living, working and fighting together."

The morale of the people seems to be high enough. Polls show that the vast majority of the people favor preparedness to the nth degree. They favor the methods being followed and the popularity of the supreme commander of the Army and the Navy, President Roosevelt, has scaled new peaks.

It will do much toward upholding Army morale if the parents, friends and sweethearts of the boys in the camps will reflect that national attitude in their letters to the soldiers. Soldiers rush to get their daily mail, and they are made happy or sad by what they read. They cannot help but be impressed by the "word from home."

General Krueger says morale comes from teamwork and confidence—"living and working and fighting together." Pride in accomplishment and high morale ride hand in hand.

Picture shows, "dates" and light entertainment aren't the only builders of morale in an army. They are fine for diversion.

But the real builder is having something important for each man to do, making him know it's important, and letting him enjoy to the fullest his own, or his team's, accomplishments. That's building morale, and it's up to the officers of the United States Army to provide the things to be accomplished by the men.

Georgia Editors Say:

THE VALLEY'S "LITTLE MEN."

(From the Chattahoochee Valley Times)

In the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post is a poem entitled "Little Men," by Daniel Whitehead Hickey, of Atlanta. It is a poem every man and woman in the Valley should read, for it is a poem of Valley men and women. It is a poem that pays tribute to "those who turn to little hearths at night and read of wars, of kingdoms gone, of despots and their might, who bind their little world with love, finding within their eyes the light of stars and meteors, the dream that never dies; whose strength is iron and leather, who have no time for gold and fame, holding a world together."

The Valley is packed full of such people. For every "big shot" there are scores of these mighty "little men" who seldom make the newspaper headlines, who seldom are singled out for honors, who know but little of "fame and glory" but men who carry on at their daily tasks with faith and loyalty in their hearts, men who return to their homes at night to keep burning the fires of virtue, truth and love. Men who are the salt of the earth. Men who are the very backbone of the Valley's real greatness.

To pay tribute to these men is not to disparage the worth, the necessity of our leaders. Our leaders are our men of vision, men who catch the gleam and pass the torch along to those within the ranks. But without this vast army of "little men" to follow and carry through, little would be accomplished, little done. The "little men," after all are the ones who win the battles in the front-line trenches of the home and community.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

ROOSEVELT'S PRESS CONFERENCES WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—President Roosevelt's first White House press conference after returning from his momentous meeting with Prime Minister Churchill on the high seas found him in a philosophical mood, tempered by good humor and a renewed determination to carry through the administration's war aims and peace objectives.

When these conferences were initiated at the beginning of the first Roosevelt administration back in 1933 it was said that the President's free and easy manner of meeting with the press could not last. Cynics gave them no longer than a few months to live before abuse would force a reversion to the closer formalities of the Hoover, Coolidge and Harding regimes.

They have been going on steadily now for more than eight years, with no signs of slowing down. Twice a week they are held—on Tuesdays and Fridays—when the President is in Washington and matters of health or state do not intervene. They are still the best press conferences in town—more colorful, more news, and attended by more newspapermen than will be found at any other world capital press conference.

Mr. Roosevelt not only enjoys these conferences; there are reasons to believe that he thrives on them. He is still the complete master of the situation, just as he was when he came to Washington fresh for such an ordeal some eight years ago. Next to the radio, they constitute his main source for the dissemination of his views to the public. If a false interpretation is placed on some of his official acts by critics of the administration, he is given an opportunity thus to clarify the situation without the necessity of issuing a formal statement. He tells the newspapermen about it at one of the regular press conferences.

VALUABLE OFF-RECORD DISCUSSIONS If the country becomes alarmed over implications of some domestic or foreign development that involves a state secret which cannot always be revealed openly, he will take the opportunity to discuss it in a free, thorough off-the-record, discussion of the press. The effect usually is to stop unwarranted speculation and false fears.

Although never an active newspaperman, Mr. Roosevelt, through his almost constant dealings with the press over the years of his public service, actually has a keener sense of news values than many of his journalistic interviewers. Often he will point out at his press conferences what represents the main element of news in what he is disclosing. He will even suggest a lead for the story if you ask him—all good-naturedly, of course.

Tuesday's conference after returning from the Churchill meeting, while more interesting in many of its aspects by the very nature of things, was not so unusual as to prevent its being cited as more or less typical of others in the past.

Upwards of 150 newspapermen and other departmental press liaison representatives streamed into his office at the appointed hour. Usually there are about 100. The added number were attracted by promise of an elaboration of the dramatic events of the past ten days. Turning the tables on his questioners after the "all-in" signal had been given, the President, in a playful mood, asked what had been happening while he was away. Someone reminded him that it had been mostly surmise as to his actions in connection with the Churchill meeting. To which Mr. Roosevelt, pretending not to hear, replied, "Sir who?"

The first question dealt with the Japanese situation. Were there any new developments in the Pacific? Mr. Roosevelt dismissed the inquiry with the comment that there was no news.

THE PRESS AND THE PRESIDENT Next he was asked about current conferences with Lord Beaverbrook, the British minister of supply and production, now in Washington. There was a brief explanation by the President of what the government was working out with the British cabinet officer regarding British war needs for 1942 and later. A newspaperman wanted to know if this warranted the assumption that the war will continue through 1943. "If necessary," was Mr. Roosevelt's cryptic reply.

Then came the high point of the conference—the dramatic, history-making discussions with the British prime minister somewhere on the Atlantic. Much of what the President said on this score was off the record. He did not want to be quoted on observations as to whether England can win the war without our active intervention, for fear of being misunderstood, but he revealed his appraisal of the situation quite frankly.

In the same connection he told why it had been necessary to keep plans of the high-sea meeting secret. The security and safety of the British Prime Minister and his staff demanded that nothing leak out on the meeting in advance, he had felt, adding that the same feeling as regards the safety of the President and his staff had prompted similar measures on the part of Mr. Churchill.

On the ultimate outcome of the war, the President told his questioners that he was confident, but in the same breath he warned against the dangers of overconfidence. In a philosophical frame of mind, he read a passage from Carl Sandburg's Life of Lincoln, which seemed to carry the thought that the country was practically in a state of war without being fully aware of it. The passage was so apt that he allowed it to be quoted as having been cited by him. Press dispatches have already carried the exact language; hence repetition is unnecessary.

Again in the same vein—a sort of philosophical lecturing mood—the President told the newspapermen he wanted to read them something that would be good for their souls. It was a letter he had on his desk and it dealt with the spiritual values behind the meeting of minds of the heads of the two great English-speaking nations, as reflected in the declaration of principles made by himself and Prime Minister Churchill. Turner Catledge, of the New York Times, wanted to know who wrote the letter. "A friend," replied Mr. Roosevelt, to the accompaniment of smiles from his audience.

After that the President showed his agility in jumping from international questions to local situations by giving a lengthy recapitulation of the pros and cons of the argument for placing across the Potomac in Virginia the proposed $35,000,000 new War Department building which congress recently approved. He was inclined to be against it because it would not conform to the original conception of making Washington the best laid-out national capital in the world. Something was on his conscience to make him wonder whether he would be allowed to enter Heaven because of a similar offense he had committed while assistant secretary of the navy during the last World War. He had persuaded President Wilson to locate a temporary War Department structure in one of the nation's parks, and the structure still stands to mar the beauty of its surroundings after more than 20 years.

Any newspaperman properly accredited to the conference can ask any question he pleases. If the question oversteps the bounds of propriety, Mr. Roosevelt needs no one to discipline the offender. He has a caustic tongue.

The White House press gatherings have now come to be an institution in Washington. They offer a contact between the President and the newspaper-reading public that cannot well be dispensed with. Mr. Roosevelt finds them useful no less than the correspondents.

The Pulse of the Public

The Constitution invites expression of opinion by its readers. This column is open for that purpose. All communications must be signed and all are subject to editing for conservation of space. Brevity makes argument effective and impels attention.

SPECIAL TRAINING FOR COUNTRY DOCTORS Editor, Constitution: The growing scarcity of doctors in the smaller towns is becoming a serious problem. Almost daily the press reports the passing of one of our older country doctors; and it is foolish to expect that their places will be filled by graduates of medical schools, where the requisite scholastic standing and expense make specialization in a city necessary as adequate compensation. I would not advocate lowering the rigid standards of our established schools, but I do believe that a separate school for "General Practitioners" would supply a needed demand for country doctors, and doctors who would be as well qualified as those of the "horse and buggy days."

Here is a tentative plan for supplying Georgia with "General Practitioners": 1. Establish a state school with curriculum especially designed for teaching the fundamentals of diagnosis; first-aid; obstetrics; medicine; anatomy, and elementary surgery. 2. Graduates of accredited high schools to be eligible for admission. 3. An intensive two-year course required for graduation, with license to practice outside the urban districts as a special "General Practitioner."

A Million Roads

Though I should take a million roads That lead a million ways, There yet would be a million roads To keep me in a maze. I shall not grieve for any road Which I have failed to take, Because I cannot take them all, And yet my living make.

Though I should climb a million heights, Though I should scale a million heights To climb on other days, I shall not remain awake And yearn for things unknown; I'll take the road and climb the height Which I can call my own.

What good can come from yearning for The things we do not know? Why worry about roads and heights Which lie beneath the snow? Accept that which you have, and know, And value it quite right. Then as your needs shall call for more, To find it, you may try.

Serious and For Keeps

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—I believe everyone with access to a column, more or less, of newspaper, to a microphone or to a neighbor's ear, has now stated his considered opinion of the document which President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill brought forth. I have refrained from expressing mine, because I have no opinion because the document is not valid because at least one of the parties, namely, President Roosevelt, did not possess the proper credentials. In other words, I believe that President Roosevelt has pulled away from the American people and will have to win back their confidence. He recalls to mind the experience of the late Major Lyman, a devoted Iowa patriot and a local journalist in Des Moines, who assembled his company in a lodge hall for service in the Philippines and started off for the railroad cars at the head of a column, only to discover that somehow the troops had made a wrong turn on leaving the building and that he was marching along Walnut street alone. Major Lyman was able to laugh about that in his later years, for, after all, when he did find his command they went out to the islands together, but this is no laughing matter. This is serious and for keeps and President Roosevelt has not only lost contact with his command, but has set up in the people a spirit of estrangement.

I believe it goes all the way back to the beginning of the so-called New Deal, which never was a formulated plan or philosophy and has neither recognizable shape nor popular endorsement even now. Huey Long once described the President as a scrooch owl and went on to explain that a scrooch owl was one which would fly into the henhouse at night and scrooch up against the hens and scrooch and scrooch and scrooch.

"An' putty soon," Huey said, using the low-down or red-dial dialect which he sometimes affected for appeals to the acorn eaters, "day ain't no hens."

President Roosevelt has loaded the federal government with ringers from the left wing who were, and most of whom remain, unknown to the people and who never have been or could have been elected to any office. He has been conducting a relentless campaign against private property which is not merely the plants of United States Steel, Henry Ford and the Aluminum Company but every man's pay, his home, his little store or his savings invested in securities. The Dies committee of congress has been hampered and harassed in public political demonstrations by the President, Mrs. Roosevelt and other members of the administration for the sole reason that the committee persistently turned up amid the scoops of muck in which it necessarily had to delve, men and women who were planted in the agencies of the national government notwithstanding their Communist affiliations or associations.

Debt piled to mountainous heights, and the American Congress raided the Treasury for local temporary benefits which the voters demanded as their "share." The very people, themselves, were taught and encouraged to practice civic cannibalism in which they devoured the government, and members of congress who knew better rocked along anyway because they realized that if they refused to raid the Treasury, the administration would pour money into their constituencies to elect rivals who would gladly do so.

Union leaders or notorious characters, dictators, thieves and Communists were given a clear license to persecute millions of the people, at the expense of public peace and private business, and this license was defended as "labor's gains," even when union bosses struck against the works that were trying to produce weapons and equipment for men drafted into the armed forces.

So, while father and the boys were making history and amateur movies in the great meeting at sea, the people at home were asking soberly just what the United States might gain by winning the war. Is this a war for bankruptcy, repudiation of debt, the confiscation or total loss of every man's savings and the establishment of a government whose swollen and arrogant minor appointees, such as Leon Henderson, may sneer at the authority of congress and slout its recommendations? Is this a war to establish several hundred small union dictatorships over the live and earnings of workmen and presently to consolidate them into one?

The trouble is that the people don't know. They have grounds for uneasiness and suspicion and the present gives no reassuring sign.

Army Embarrassed.

Amos Lehtola, 33, of Boston, a Finnish citizen and 10-month resident of the United States, volunteered for the Army, passed the physical test and was nearly in uniform when selective service officials found he could not read, write or speak English. He was rejected after officers found he walked straight ahead when told to turn left or right.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

ARMY MORALE I remember being in the rear ranks of the Marine Corps with a boy from Georgia. He came from some small town, the name of which escapes me. We had spent some months on Parris Island, off the coast of South Carolina. It was an old camp but the expansion was new and the comforts were nil. There were no ice drinks or ice cream to be had at the canteen. The ginger ale and the soft drinks were no cooler than the air, which was quite hot.

The first stop on leaving the island was at Quantico, Va. We lined up at a drugstore fountain.

"What'll you have?" asked the young man behind the counter. He was looking at the boy from Georgia. The boy thought a considerable time. One could almost see the list of things long desired running through his mind like a new reel.

"I'll take," he said, looking upward, "a strawberry ice cream sody."

He got it and took a long pull at the straw and then a bite of the ice cream.

"This," he said, solemnly, "is too good for sergeants."

I never thought much about morale in the training camps in that period. Those ice cream sodas wiped out all the memory of lack of them. I don't think anyone thought much about morale. There was no entertainment beyond a few prize fights. (Gene Tunney was there.) We did see an occasional movie. The rifle team came back from a match, the victors, and we hauled them through the company streets in wheelboats.

The morale of the Marine Corps is high and always has been. It is high because it has a tradition, and it has tough non-coms and officers who know their way around.

OFFICERS, EQUIPMENT Morale is high in the Marines, the Navy, in the armored divisions, the parachute troops and in the Regular Army. It is not so high at some of the camps where selectees are in training.

By getting off some letters to people at various camps, I have arrived at an answer which seems plausible. At least, it does to me. There are reasons. The lack of recreational facilities are bad in some of the small towns. But recreation doesn't build morale. Morale often is at its highest in places where recreation is almost nil.

Morale is low at some camps because the men don't feel they are learning anything; because they haven't enough equipment, and because they don't know what their objectives are, or what they are to be.

Our reserve officers, with many splendid and outstanding exceptions, are not measuring up. Our National Guard officers, with many unusual exceptions, are not up to standard.

We have been producing enough equipment to have given our own divisions more equipment than they have, but England has been getting the bulk of it. By January we will BEGIN producing enough for our own needs and for England, too. By next summer we will be producing more than the rest of the world and can, I imagine, double world production without too much trouble.

Meanwhile, we haven't had enough to supply our own men for training purposes in all our infantry, machinegun and artillery divisions.

That, plus the fact we haven't enough trained officers and that the men soon find out an officer who doesn't know his job, has hurt. Also, the fact that Wheeler and Lindbergh kept telling the soldiers they aren't needed and that this country will never need to fight, hasn't helped either. No man has ever done his country and its young men who are in the Army a more unpatriotic service than Wheeler and Lindbergh. That is a fact which can't be denied.

Even Wheeler and Lindbergh are not really important if we can solve the other factors contributing to discouragement and "the blues."

MORALE WILL IMPROVE Morale, in those camps where it is lacking, will improve. As soon as the officers improve and equipment arrives, morale will build forward. Hard work, with good officers and good equipment, will solve the morale problem. Entertainment is fine. But it is not a builder of morale. Morale is an intangible possession which each regiment, company and squad must build within itself.

We have poor officers and not enough good ones because congress (that means you and me) never was encouraged to build up a system for training them. West Point took care of the peace-time needs. Training camps in the last war hurried them out and produced some very fine ones, too.

Many reserve officers kept themselves in shape and informed. They are doing great jobs today. Most of them didn't. They didn't because reserve officer organizations rarely were encouraged.

We are paying the penalty today. Complaining and criticism are no good. There they are. Each day our situation improves. Our officers are learning. Our factories are producing more.

Sure, the situation isn't so good. But there it is. We made it. Our past system produced it. The past system was us.

It's tough on the boys and tough on the officers. Those who aren't any good, with few exceptions, know they aren't and are working like dogs.

The Army is weeding out the misfits. We'll begin to come along. Meanwhile, most of the grousing is soldier grousing. Every man who has served in the ranks has heard the loud threats to go over the hill, the blustering protests.

If every non-com who was going to be shot by a soldier as "soon as they got into battle" in the last war had been killed, there wouldn't have been one left.

That's soldier talk. Meanwhile, we are on the way. We are slowed down because we neglected things so long. Even now we let the Wheelers confuse us. But we'll make the grade.

The Tree Is Judged by Its Fruit

And Not by the Label It Wears

By ROBERT QUILLEN

The literate people of America were shocked some days ago when a United States senator publicly declared that our country should take over and control the other nations of this hemisphere.

The remark still reverberates in Latin America, for the people down there have long been taught to fear the "Colossus of the North," and now their suspicions have been reawakened and they are alarmed and angry.

How would you feel if one of England's prominent statesmen advised his country to take over and control the United States? You would not be alarmed, but words could not express your angry and scornful resentment.

It is common knowledge that the Latins are proudly nationalistic—much more so than we are, for our nation is mighty and theirs are weak, and knowledge of their weakness makes them touchy. The countries that have most to fear are most fiercely patriotic.

It is common knowledge, also, that our government is spending enormous sums and doing everything in its power to gain the confidence and co-operation of Latin-American nations, since the defense of our own country would be infinitely more difficult if the Latins refused to help us or co-operated with our enemy.

It is common knowledge, too, that our efforts to win Latin-America's friendship have not yet overcome old suspicions and resentments. And everybody knows that the surest and quickest way to arouse the enmity of Latin nations is to threaten their sovereignty. The senator must have known these things. He must have known what the effect of his statement would be.

Why, then, did he deliberately enrage those whose good will and co-operation are necessary to our safety?

Be charitable, if you will, and call it a thoughtless and irresponsible slip. But a man in high office has given up the right to make slips. As a private citizen and nobody, he had the right of free and careless speech. As a senator, he speaks with the voice of authority and power; to people in other lands he is not an individual but a voice speaking for the nation.

Loose talk by officials is always a humiliation to the people; now it can be as hurtful as treason—and many are guilty of it.

Edwin Callaway, ed., pub. and prop. of the Thomasville Press, has gone insurgent again.

Mr. Callaway, who spells his name without capitals—ostensibly from modesty, but actually, one suspects, to attract attention—comes right out in print in heated opposition to one form of governmental oppression. Mr. Callaway objects bitterly to being told he cannot plunge neck-deep into debt if he so desires.

The promulgation which arouses his ire is the federal control plan which will require a man to make a large down payment on his car, refrigerator, radio or a set of harness for the dog. But I shall quote him—in part: "They can't do that to us. They can't deprive us of our constitutional, inalienable, and unchanging right to go into debt. What's the world coming to, if a man is not allowed to hock his next year's salary to have an automobile today? It's class legislation, that's what it is. We're going to write our congressman. We're going to write our senator. We're going to write our President.

"Why, our great, our noble country was created on the supposition that every man was created equal under the installment system of buying. What if your neighbor has just planked down 400 and 50 bucks for a super-heterodyned, frequency modulated, 21-jeweled short-circuited radio. As long as you can buy the same set for nothing down and a determined visitor at your home each Monday morning, you are just as good as your neighbor. "Leaving technicalities behind, and returning to personalities, we might say that if it weren't for installment buying we would be as barren of property as a brief, a mulk, a peon, or anyone who neglected to meet his installments. We've bought magazines, books, radios, tires, refrigerators, watches, stoves, automobiles, dictionaries, suits, tennis rackets, teeth fillings, fishing rods, and spectacles on the installment plan. By the simple method of paying a small amount down, a like sum every week, and infinite patience on the part of our creditors we've bought a lot of things that've come in mighty useful. We might even state here that after only five more payments at the bank our wife will be cured. "There's one ray of hope. The news article that we read stated that 'meanwhile the public can buy on whatever terms business men are willing to sell.' That's fine. We have $4.75 in cash, and with that much coin of the realm we know where we can make modest down payments on a new radio, bedroom suite, overcoat, typewriter, and piano and still have a few dimes left to put in the piggy bank. "Excuse us, folks, we're out to make some down payments."

'No Smoking Here'
Whenever a copy of the Marion County Patriot of Buena Vista, Ga., reaches my desk it recalls a "good roads" tour of the state many years ago—when there were no good roads. But plenty of good times. Our 12 carloads of tourists, worn and hungry from traversing more than 40 miles since breakfast—were well fed at this caravansary, because we'd telephoned a warning we were on our way and hoped to arrive. It was after the usual lunch time. Or dinner time, as it was then. The hotel, I was told, was operated by an elderly spinster—maybe a couple of them. And she certainly could dish out the chicken and gravy. With fixings. There were no guests in the dining room besides our party, so when we'd downed the final slab of apple pie, some of us lighted cigarettes. Several hardened sinners even started cigars. Into that dining room descended the proprietress. "What do you mean?" she demanded. I knew very well she wanted to say "what the hell," but she had been brought up a lady—"by smoking in my dining room. Will you please get out of here—all of you—and let me get this room aired out?" So we paid our bills and snuck out.

I wonder if that dear old girl is still alive and running the hotel and serving that grand chicken and cream gravy. But I've never dared to venture there again. But I'll bet that if she's still boss, she'd join me in a smoke.

Danger Zone

Motorists and folk in search of a stray dog may find it "dangerous to be safe," as our Tennessee mountain friends used to say, in the vicinity of the army camps which have established ranges for rifle practice—and perhaps artillery.

Papers in the vicinity of Camp Stewart—down Savannah way—publish notices from the military high command that firing is about to begin in the Anti-Aircraft Training Center and that maps showing the danger zone are to be had at headquarters.

I'm not traveling that way, so I'm not disturbed. But I know what high-powered ammunition can do. I once shot a .22 rifle, with a modern cartridge, at a jaybird. I missed the blue-winged nuisance, but the bullet went through two tough oak walls of the garage and, I think, crossed

Peachtree road, half a mile away. If it killed anybody, there wasn't any story in next day's papers, so I never gave myself up to the cops.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

FUN AT HOME.

During the polio epidemic, the Atlanta Girl Scout Council is rendering a very fine service, not only to the girls of the organization, but to all young people, in its Fun at Home program. Emphasis upon this plan of finding actual fun in staying at home and doing useful work is heard in a series of radio broadcasts over stations WSB and WAGA, under the direction of the Atlanta Council.

The subjects of these broadcasts give some idea of the variety of things which the council is suggesting for the girls this summer, when they must keep a little more closely to their own homes and yards because of the persistent epidemic of this dread disease. For example:

Outdoor cookery, indoor cookery, photography, creative writing, fall vegetable gardens, home defense, interesting backyards, it's fun to read, sports and games at home, safety in the home.

One wonders if these girls will not find it very interesting, indeed, to follow through this program, remembering that they are not only entertaining themselves, but actually preparing themselves for more useful living in the days ahead.

After all, it will be a most wholesome thing for our country if we somehow learn the fine art, almost entirely forgotten, of entertaining ourselves instead of depending upon others to entertain us. And where will one find a better way to entertain themselves, particularly young people, than in doing some useful thing at home?

Time was when young people had definite home tasks—helping keep house, cook, laundry, sew, and so forth, for girls; and for the boys there was the care of the stock, milking, chopping wood, shucking corn, cultivating vegetable and flower gardens, mending fences, work in the fields, and so forth.

It is sadly true that our generation of young people have had so little to do at home that they have become pathetically dependent upon outside amusements for their entertainment. Parents, especially the mothers, have largely become chauffeurs, driving their helpless little ones to school, going back for them, with sandwiches to be gulped down as they drove them on to the picture shows, then waiting in front of the picture shows to drive them to the two or three blocks home in the late afternoon, stopping by the delicatessen for a few more slices of bread with which to throw together their evening meal, whereupon the fathers then take over the job of chauffeuring the youngsters around to the dances, and so forth, hoping to get them home and in bed by midnight. Let us be thankful that the Girl Scouts are learning to stay at home this year.

Retail Merchants' President and Secretary Back From Capital.

A. L. Zachry, president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, and L. L. Austin, secretary of that organization and of the Georgia Mercantile Association, have returned from Washington where they conferred with Senator George, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

They discussed with the senator administrative features of several items in the huge tax bill now before the finance committee.

End of Vanderbilt, Morgan Row Seen

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(P)—Indication that reconciliation might have been effected between Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt and her mother, estranged by a bitter court fight six years ago, was contained in an announcement by Mrs. Vanderbilt today.

Mrs. Vanderbilt said in a telephone statement to the Associated Press:

"I am happy to state that my mother, Mrs. Harry Hays Morgan, is enjoying very good health."

The statement followed published reports that both Mrs. Vanderbilt and her daughter, Gloria, 16, had flown from California to New York because Mrs. Morgan was ill here.

William G. Bibb Leaves Fund to High School

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(P)—William G. Bibb, 79, who died Saturday, left half of his residuary estate, of undetermined value, to the Protestant Episcopal High school, of Alexandria, Va., of which he was a trustee for many years.

His will, filed in surrogate's court today with a formal valuation of more than $100,000 on the estate, made an outright cash bequest of $600,000 to his widow, Mrs. Emma Leedy Bibb.

Bibb, a native of New Orleans, was a descendant of William Wyatt Bibb, early governor of Alabama and Georgia.

Lakeland Bank Reports Peak Bank Deposits

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. LAKELAND, Ga., Aug. 20.—A new peak in bank deposits has been reached in the Farmers & Merchants Bank of Lakeland, according to W. C. Banks, cashier.

Deposits are the highest in the history of the bank which was established in 1907. The cashier gives credit for the boost to better prices for tobacco and other farm products and employment at the air base construction located eight miles from Lakeland, in Lanier and Lowndes counties.

Doctors Asked To Fix School Opening Date

Recommendations Will Be Passed to Boards of Education.

Atlanta and Fulton county doctors will decide whether or not city and county schools will open on schedule or be deferred probably until September 15, because of the prevalence of polio.

Following a conference yesterday between school and health officials, the doctors were asked to contact other physicians and to file a recommendation with school administrators today. It was agreed at the conference that whatever decision the doctors reach will be passed to the respective boards of education.

City schools are slated to begin classes on September 4 and county schools on September 8, under their calendars, but the unusual number of paralysis cases has caused school officials to view an early opening with apprehension.

Dr. James F. Hackney, assistant city health officer; Dr. Rufus Payne, assistant county health officer, and Dr. Don Calhoun, of the Atlanta Pediatrics Society, were requested to ascertain the recommendations of doctors themselves before any action is taken in the matter of school opening.

DeKalb schools already have postponed their opening date until September 15.

In addition to the physicians, Jere A. Wells, Fulton county school superintendent; Dr. Willis A. Sutton, city school superintendent, and Sutton's assistant, Dr. H. Reid Hunter, attended the conference.

Wide Variety Again Offered To Moviegoers

Three New Pictures Billed; Two Are Hold-overs.

By DUDLEY GLASS.
Comedy, crime, ghosts and romance provide variety for moviegoers on Atlanta screens this week, starting today.

Only picture I've seen at a preview is "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," at the Rialto, which is mostly light comedy with Robert Montgomery as the star, but containing an element of the weird.

"Hold That Ghost," at the Fox, should give Abbott and Costello a fine chance at funmaking.

The Capitol presents "Citadel of Crime," about moonshine stills in the Georgia mountains.

Loew's Grand is holding over "Life Begins for Andy Hardy."

"Navy Blue and Gold," a re-issue, is starting today at the Rhodes. "Parachute Battalion" has been transferred from the Fox to the Paramount.

'Hold That Ghost'

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, popular comedians of radio and screen, are featured in "Hold That Ghost," the comedy starting today at the Fox. It is said to have made a hit at last week's midnight show.

Playing in support of the comics are Richard Carlson, Joan Davis, Mischa Auer, Evelyn Ankerson, Shemp Howard, the Andrews Sisters and Ted Lewis and his orchestra. "Hold That Ghost," most of which is backgrounded within a long-abandoned and supposedly haunted roadhouse, was directed by Arthur Lubin, who piloted Abbott and Costello in both "Buck Privates" and the Navy feature.

Carrying a rip-roaring story as a means of holding together their zany dialog and gags, and given a far more elaborate mounting than any of their earlier films, "Hold That Ghost" promises to elevate Abbott and Costello to new heights of popularity.

Opening in a night club, where Lewis and his band and the Andrews Sisters supply the entertainment, the vehicle moves speedily to a gas station, where Abbott and Costello accidentally become entangled with a gangster, inheriting the deserted inn when he is slain by police. With ghosts serving as their foes, Abbott and Costello are said to make the sky the limit for their laugh-provoking antics.

'Andy Hardy' Sticks

"Life Begins for Andy Hardy," in which opus Mickey Rooney meets Patricia Dane and learns something about the true meaning of love, has done so well at Loew's Grand that it's being held over for a week. The previously announced "Dr. Kildare" picture has been shelved—for a time.

If you're a Hardy family addict you've probably seen it. If you haven't, it's about young Andy meeting a girl from a big city and falling—hard.

Judy Garland is again in the cast—as an extra added attraction, as the carnival barker's announcement—and most attractive she is. Also, Lewis Stone, Fay Holden and the other small town folk you all know.

'Citadel of Crime'

Not so many months ago, Atlantans were treated to sensational newspaper stories telling of the search for moonshine stills in north Georgia by Uncle Sam's revenue agents, who used airplanes to spot them out.

It might be a coincidence, but one of the highlights of the new thriller film, "Citadel of Crime," which opens a three-day engagement at the Capitol theater today, features the hunt by airplanes of moonshine stills.

"Citadel of Crime," which stars Robert Armstrong, Frank Albertson and Linda Hayes, is a gangster drama telling a fast story of the manner in which a gang of New York bootleggers attempt to run liquor from the West Virginia hills to the city and there sell it for big profit.

As an added attraction the Capitol offers the March of Time issue, featuring "Men of the FBI," a thrilling pictorial study of the manner in which Uncle Sam's G-men are hot on the trail of spies in this country.

It Holds You

"Here Comes Mr. Jordan" is a very bad title of a very good picture which starts today at the Rialto theater. There's a tradition on Film Row that Columbia makes no so-and-so pictures. They're either mighty bum or mighty, mighty good. This one is one of the good ones—in my opinion. Because I've seen it at a preview.

Frankly, it's not a picture for everybody. Not for the folk who prefer cowboys and gangsters. Nor for the folk who like to see somebody get slapped in the face with a custard pie—one of which I am whom, if that's grammar, which I doubt. But darn interesting, to the adult mind.

I find myself, repeating myself—which is nothing unusual—in saying this is one of the pictures you'll enjoy if you get it at the beginning. If you wander in about the middle you'll go nuts.

'Navy Blue and Gold'

Renewed interest in Army and Navy affairs—and not forgetting the Marines—has brought up new issues of popular films with a fighting background.

One of these is "Navy Blue and Gold," now running at the Rhodes theater. It presents Robert Young, Florence Rice and James Stewart—who wasn't quite a big star when he made this one. And Lionel Barrymore.

It's a story about the rise of a common seaman to high honors at Annapolis.

Parachutists Held Over

"Parachute Battalion," which was given a world premiere at the Fox a week ago, has proved so popular it has been transferred to the Paramount for the week starting today.

Much of it was filmed at Fort Benning, with the full co-operation of the Army. The intimate scenes were done at Hollywood. But it's hard to tell which is which.

It's a thrilling story in the real parachute scenes. To see the chutes fall and blossom out into great white flowers is well worthwhile.

No fighting. The parachutists haven't reached enemy territory in this picture. Just practice jumps.

Cotton Industry Studies Bag Needs

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—(P)—The Agriculture Department announced today, representatives of the cotton textile industry had agreed to explore the possibility of expanding production of heavy cotton materials to supply agricultural with it. packaging needs in 1942.

Because of a probable reduction of imports of burlap from India, a shortage of bags made of that material is expected.

Agriculture normally uses more than one and a quarter billion yards of packaging material annually, and most of it is made of burlap. Uses include bags for feed, fertilizers, chemicals and other materials coming to the farm, as well as bags for flour, potatoes, sugar, onions, cabbages, cotton bales and other farm products.

The book was listed by the German embassy in an accounting of contents of bulky packages, some containing German propaganda, which reached Buenos Aires on a Japanese ship a few days ago.

It was titled: "Book of Police Investigations With the Names of Men 19 to 41."

Hearing Opens In Marietta on Child Custody

New York Mother Testifies in Effort To Regain Daughter.

MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 20.—(P)—Mrs. Mavis Hudgins Claycomb, of New York city, submitted her court appeal today for custody of her eight-year-old daughter, Consuelo Hudgins.

In a habeas corpus hearing before Superior Court Judge J. H. Hawkins, she contended an agreement between herself and her husband, Henry Hudgins, when they separated four years ago was that she could regain custody of the child when she was able to provide for her.

When the couple was divorced in South America, the child was entrusted to Mayor and Mrs. L. M. Blair, of Marietta. Mrs. Blair is a sister of Hudgins, former Smyrna engineer now in Bogota, Colombia.

Mrs. Claycomb told Judge Hawkins she was now able to provide for Consuelo. She said the income of her husband, Frank Claycomb, was $1,500 a year, that they resided in Queensbridge housing apartments, New York. She has a daughter, Mavis, and a stepson, Frank.

Attorneys rested Mrs. Claycomb's case today and tomorrow counsel for Mayor and Mrs. Blair will present their side. It was indicated the hearing might run into Friday.

In her petition, Mrs. Claycomb charged Blair was attempting to retain custody of the child on the "pretense that the father entrusted her" to him. She also asserted she had not committed Consuelo to Blair's custody and expressed a fear the girl would be sent back to Bogota.

German Bomber Invades Iceland

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 20. (UP)—A German bomber, invading Iceland for the first time since American forces occupied this island on July 7, was driven off today by American-built Tomahawk fighters before it could drop any bombs.

Air-raid sirens screamed as the lone twin-engined bomber roared out of the clouds. American Tomahawk planes, presumably flown by British pilots, and British fighter planes took to the air but the bomber disappeared into the clouds before it could be overtaken.

The air raid lasted 45 minutes—the second since the Americans landed here. The last alarm sounded two weeks ago but no enemy planes appeared.

Dimes Roll in For McPherson Reception Band

General Frink Donates 10c for Each of His Employees.

Dimes rolled in yesterday to buy wood winds and brass for the Fort McPherson Reception Center band as Brigadier General James L. Frink, quartermaster for the Fourth Corps Area, contributed 10 cents on behalf of every employee in his office.

There are 408 officers, soldiers and civilians working in the office of the quartermaster, headquarters of the Fourth Corps Area.

Rhodess, "Navy Blue and Gold," with James Stewart, Lionel Barrymore, and "Cheyenne Rides Again," with Edmund O'Brien, etc., at 11:35, 1:35, 3:35, 5:35, 7:35 and 9:45. Short: "Marie Green's Orchestra." "Seeing Eye Dog."

General Frink's $40.80 arrived as some 1,200 Atlantans were rubbing sleepy eyes after a benefit dance at the city auditorium which netted approximately $600 for the band.

This money and other donations will be turned over to the band and will be used to buy new instruments and repair old ones.

Another Dog Lost; Governor Runs Ad

The Governor has lost another dog, it was disclosed last night.

Rex, a German shepherd belonging to the state's chief executive, disappeared from the mansion at 250 The Prado, N. E., and the Governor placed a lost-and-found ad in this morning's Constitution.

The dog was described as somewhat larger and darker than the average "police" dog, and with a cream-colored chest. Several weeks ago, a hound given the Governor by a friend disappeared from the Governor's farm near Macon.

Production of passenger automobiles between now and December probably will be cut about 20 per cent below the 1940 levels, William S. Knudsen, director of the General Production Management, said today.

The Automotive Advisory Committee has been called to meet tomorrow with representatives of the OPM and the Office of Price Control and Civilian Supply. Knudsen said exact quotas would be announced after the meeting.

He said his press conference that about 100,000 cars would be made this month. That total, he said, is above the level of last August, but the production during the following three months probably will be curtailed until the average for the first four months of the model year is cut 20 per cent under the 1940 mark.

Japan Warned Of Australia's Strong Stand

Nipponese Created Tension, Can Ease It, Menzies Declares.

CANBERRA, Australia, Aug. 20. (AP)—Japan has created the present Far Eastern tension and Japan has the means of relief in her own hands," Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies told the house of representatives today in a special session.

Britain and the United States regard Japanese occupation of French Indo-China bases as unjustified aggression "in a direction of vital concern to both British and American interests," he said.

Without mentioning Thailand directly, he warned Japan that Australia regarded the British base of Singapore (which is strategically near Thailand) as a vital Australian defense outpost and would not avoid any sacrifice to maintain it.

"Though there is a long history of friendship between Japan and Australia," he said, "it is good even for friends to talk plainly and honestly."

"The Japanese encirclement talk, if intended to create the belief that America, Great Britain, China and the Dutch Empire are contemplating an encircling move against Japan, is utterly untrue."

Menzies said he and the Australian cabinet considered Australian representation in London as most important in view of the Far Eastern tension, and counseled: "We must use the Russian breathing space to best advantage."

"Turning to the Roosevelt-Churchill Atlantic conference, he said, 'Britain and the United States, though one is a belligerent and the other a neutral, are entering into a great moral partnership and are becoming joint champions of a life and a way for which Australia stands.'"

The Roosevelt-Churchill declaration of aims has had an enormous effect both inside and outside Europe, he asserted.

"It is a reminder that a new order is in the making and that war is not merely a great struggle for the overthrow of evil things, but something from which positively good things must emerge."

Duke of Kent To Visit F.D.R. At Hyde Park

On Tour of Canada, He Will Arrive in New York by Plane.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (AP)—The State Department announced today that the Duke of Kent, brother of King George VI of Great Britain, would spend the coming weekend with President Roosevelt at Hyde Park and return with him to Washington Monday.

The duke, who has been touring Canada, will arrive by airplane at LaGuardia airport, New York, Saturday, accompanied by his private secretary, J. A. Lowther, and Wing Commander Sir Louis Greig. They will go immediately to Hyde Park to visit the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Returning with the President to the capital Monday, the duke will go to the naval air station at Anacostia and then leave to visit military and naval reservations in the area of Norfolk, Va.

The party will return here the same day, and the duke will be guest at a small informal dinner at the White House that evening. The duke will stay at the White House.

He will visit the Glenn L. Martin plane factory at Baltimore Tuesday morning, returning here that afternoon and departing that night for Canada.

Deferment Appeals Go to Local Board

Only a local draft board can handle appeals for deferment or reclassification of a selective service registrant, Brigadier General Sion B. Hawkins, state selective service director, pointed out yesterday.

He said many persons entitled to appeal such classification—registrants, dependents and employees—delayed their appeal by sending communication to state or national headquarters.

"Any matter pertaining to the classification of a registrant must be taken up directly with the board where he is registered," Hawkins said.

Alabama Fire Destroys Tons of Gasoline, Oil

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 20. (AP)—A spectacular fire swept the main storage depot of the Citizens' Oil Company here today, destroying tons of fuel valued at many thousands of dollars.

Company Manager Derrell L. Clark said he was unable to give a monetary estimate of the damage, but that 10,000 gallons of kerosene, 36,000 gallons of gasoline, 18,000 gallons of motor oil, two carloads of motor oil in cans and one carload of cleaning fluid had been destroyed.

Schools in Atkinson To Open September 15

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. PEARSON, Ga., Aug. 20. (AP)—Atkinson county white schools will open September 15, announces J. O. White Jr., county school superintendent. W. R. Lang has resigned as principal and coach, and leaves Willacoochee to go to the Alma school system. W. B. Webb will be succeeded by Miss Marie Adams, of LaGrange, as teacher of commercial subjects at the Pearson High school.

Miss Burton Will Be Bride Of Mr. Richardson on Sept. 12

MISS MILDRED LEE BURTON.

MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 20.—Enlisting sincere interest is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Burton, of Marietta, of the engagement of their daughter, Mildred Lee Burton, of Atlanta, to Ernest F. Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Richardson, also of Marietta. The marriage will be solemnized September 12 at Maple Avenue Methodist church in Marietta.

Miss Burton received her education in the public schools of Marietta and graduated from Marietta High school in 1939. She graduated from the Draughon School of Commerce in 1940 and is now connected with the Liberty Mutual Insurance Company, of Atlanta.

The bride-elect's only brother is James Howard Burton, of Camp Stewart, Hinesville, Ga.

The groom-elect graduated from the Acworth High school in 1938 and is now connected with the National Sea Food Company in Atlanta.

Party Is Planned For Brides-Elect

Miss Olive Howard will be hostess tomorrow at a luncheon at the Druid Hills Golf Club, honoring two lovely brides-elect of Decatur, Misses Alice Walker and Lillie Shepherd Davis.

Covers will be placed for Mesdames Clyde Z. Walker, Robert Davis Sr., Homer Howard, Carol Thomas, Steve Steinhauer, Leroy Kling, John Winchester, William Thigpin, Robert Patterson, George Munford, Robert Davis Jr., Ed Carmack, Misses Martha Ware, Ruth Slack, Dorothy Ramspeck, Jacqueline Howard, Jessie Sutton, Jane Franklin, Mary Lois Riley, Jane Turk, Ruby Steele, Eloise Estes, the honorees and hostess.

A.W.V.S. Lectures Take Place Today

The 10th in the series of lectures by the A. W. V. S. takes place this morning and this evening at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Lambdin Kay will speak at 11 o'clock and at 8 o'clock on "What Are We Defending?"

Cox-Wood Nuptials Held At Glenn Memorial Chapel

The Little Chapel of the Glenn Memorial church was the scene yesterday afternoon of the marriage of Miss Ann Alzar Cox, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. Cox, to Jesse Morgan Wood Jr., son of Judge and Mrs. Jesse M. Wood, the rites having been solemnized at 5 o'clock. Dr. Wallace Rogers officiated.

Goodrich White presented the music, and the altar was beautified with two pedestal baskets filled with white gladioli and lilies flanking either end. Centering the altar was a cathedral candelabrum holding lighted white tapers.

Judge Wood served as best man for his son, and the ushers were Robert E. Cox, uncle of the bride, and John S. Lucas.

Mrs. Al Roach was the bride's matron of honor and only attendant. She was attired in a model of powder blue marquisette. She wore a matching picture hat of hair braid, trimmed with streamers. She carried a bouquet of garden flowers tied with yellow ribbon.

Cox-Wood Nuptials Held At Glenn Memorial Chapel

The radiant young bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an exquisite gown of white marquisette, the fitted bodice featuring a wide band of white moire set in at the waistline, and full bishop sleeves. The full skirt extended into a short train. Her finger-tip veil of illusion was caught to a tiara of orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, the gift of the groom. Orchids, tuberoses and swainsona comprised the flowers used in her bouquet.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents on Fifth street followed the wedding. Mesdames Findlay Cox, T. E. Cox, Robert Catlin, Dave Saver, Monica Keenan assisted in entertaining. Miss Lucy Statham kept the bride's book.

Garden flowers adorned the reception rooms of the home, and the lace-covered bride's table was centered with the tiered wedding cake on a mound of tuberoses and swainsona.

Mrs. Cox chose for her daughter's wedding a model of ice-blue

Canteen Class To Begin Friday

A new Canteen Corps class will begin tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the auditorium of the Atlanta Gas Company. Mrs. Vivian McLendon Webb, supervisor of home economics in the Fulton county schools, will direct the course. She will be assisted by authorities in nutrition, public health, kitchen engineering, motion study, army food buying, hospital feeding, and others.

Mrs. William Perrin Nicolson Jr., chairman of the canteen committee of the American Women's Voluntary Service and the Red Cross, announced that only those who have completed the nutrition course or its equivalent in the last few years are eligible for the canteen course. Mrs. Nicolson also stated that all those assisting in the work of the courses had volunteered to serve without pay.

chiffon with matching lace jacket with which she wore a hat of beige bako straw trimmed in blue. Her shoulder bouquet was of pink roses and suberoses. Mrs. Wood, the groom's mother, wore a gown of dusty rose moire taffeta with a hat of beige bako straw trimmed in king's blue. A shoulder

Miss White and Mr. Driver Select Bridal Attendants

Miss Elizabeth Sayre White and Austin Mondell Driver, of Rome and Carrollton, whose engagement was announced recently, have selected August 29 as the date of their marriage which will be solemnized at the Winship Chapel of the First Presbyterian church.

Rev. John Melton, of Rome, will read the marriage service at 5 o'clock in the presence of an assemblage of friends and relatives of the popular couple. Prior to the ceremony Miss Carolyn Malone, organist, will present a musical program.

Serving as ushers will be Morrell Driver, the groom-elect's brother; Will White, of Columbus, uncle of the bride-elect; Jack Parker, of Marietta, and Edwin Williamson, of Carrollton. Acting as best man will be Woodfin Cole, of Carrollton.

The pretty brunet bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father, Knowles Dee White. Mrs. John Ramsey Jr., of Macon, will be her sister's matron of honor and only attendant.

Mr. and Mrs. Knowles D. White will entertain at a reception at their home on Manor Ridge drive following the ceremony.

Miss Clifton King, of Rome, and Mrs. James Bailey, of Fort Jackson, S. C., will keep the bride's book. Assisting in entertaining will be Misses Virginia Driver, of Carrollton; Madge Gellinger, of Rome; Elizabeth Taylor, of Columbus; Eleanor Strickland, of Concord; Mary Jane Fleischer, and Daisy Miller.

Party Is Planned For Miss Culver

Miss Betsy Culver, of Culverton, Ga., whose engagement to Ned Iverson, of Miami and Decatur, was recently announced, will be honored at a number of social affairs, the first to be a miscellaneous shower to be held on Saturday.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Harry Malone and her daughter, Mrs. J. Harvey Pate, the former Miss Allie Malone, who will entertain at their home on Fifteenth street. The bride-elect was an attendant in Mrs. Pate's marriage last month, the two being former classmates at Agnes Scott College.

Invited are a group of former college mates, Misses Virginia Franklin, Louise Franklin, Eleanor Turner, Gladys Carr, Elsie York, Louise Meiere, Dorris Dalton, Virginia Corr, Mary Arbuckle, Val Nielsen, Florence Ellis, Marcia Mansfield, Sara Handler, of LaGrange; Tommy Turner, Carolyn Reid, Hazel Scruggs, Jane Stillwell, Virginia Broome, Winifred Anderson, Louise Moore, of Culverton; Mary Lou Culver, of Culverton; Mrs. H. ### Activities Planned By Daughters of '98.

The Daughters of '98, United Spanish War Veterans, met recently at the home of the advisor, Mrs. Daisy Irwin. The pledge to the flag was led by the color sergeant, Miss Grace Black.

Plans were made for purchasing uniforms. It was also decided to invite the department president, Mrs. Pearl Parham, of Albany, to be their guest at their picnic, to be given at Piedmont park on September 10. A bingo party will be given at the home of Mrs. Irwin on the evening of September 18.

The history of the Spanish-American war will be studied, an essay contest held and a prize will be given the member presenting the best essay at the end of the year. Miss Grace Black is chairman.

Miss Joan Mitchell, attractive daughter of Colonel and Mrs. C. A. Mitchell, of The Presidio, San Francisco, Cal., who is a popular addition to the ranks of the college set, having enrolled at Oglethorpe University.

Wedding at Church Unites Miss Gibson and Mr. Clark

The First Baptist church in College Park formed the setting for the marriage of Miss Ethel Martin Gibson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene F. Gibson, to Robert Harold Clark, son of Mrs. L. L. Clark, which was solemnized at 8 o'clock last evening. Rev. James L. Baggett officiated before a large assemblage of friends and relatives. A program of music was rendered by Frank Willingham, organist, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Looney, soloists.

At either side of the chancel were placed tall standards filled with white gladioli and gypsophyllia, against an arrangement of palms and ferns. Cathedral candleabra held lighted tapers.

The usher-groomsman were Loren Clark, of Russellville, Ark., brother of the groom; Eugene Gibson, brother of the bride; Winston Austin, Charlie B. Thornton, Phillip Rhodes, John Oxford, Jack Driskell and Fred Philip.

Misses Alice Reins, Catherine Hutchens, of Columbia, S. C.; Evelyn Lancaster, of Wrens; Louise Harris, Alice Warlick and Mrs. John Oxford, of Americus, were the bridesmaids. They were gown-d alike in floor-length models of peacock green taffeta, made princess style, the flared skirts being posed over crinoline. They carried crescent-shaped shower bouquets of white gladioli, swainsona and stephanotis, tied with satin-edged white embroidered chiffon ribbon. Their hair ornaments were white gladioli and swainsona.

The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and Herbert Clark, of Charleston, S. C., who acted as his brother's best man.

The bride, who is a beautiful brunette, was gown-d in white slipper satin fashioned along princess lines, finished with long sleeves pointed over the hands and trimmed in tiny white satin buttons. The long, flared skirt ended in a fan-shaped train. Her full-length veil of illusion tulle was caught to her hair with a coronet of pearlized orange blossoms. Her only ornament was an antique cameo, the gift of her grandmother, Mrs. J. T. Martin. She carried a white satin prayer book showered with white satin ribbons, to which was fastened a cluster of white orchids and stephanotis.

The bride's mother was gown-d in a becoming model of blue crepe with gold-threaded lace bodice. Mrs. Clark chose for her son's wedding a gown of aqua crepe. Both wore shoulder bouquets of rubrum lilies.

The reception which followed was given by the bride's parents at their home in College Park, and assembled the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

Garden flowers were used in profusion in decorating the entire house and the bride's table was overlaid with an imported lace cloth and centered with a tiered wedding cake.

During the evening the couple left for Daytona Beach. The bride traveled in a model of defense blue wool, trimmed in squirrel, with brown accessories and wore a shoulder spray of orchids. Upon their return they will make their home in Capitol View, Atlanta.

Maple Grove No. 86 Meets This Evening.

Maple Grove No. 86, Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, will meet in the clubroom, 160 Central avenue, at 8 o'clock this evening.

Mrs. Gladys Joyner will preside and will be assisted in the ritualistic work by the following:

Mesdames Rebecca Millirons, May Ola Odom, Sarah McGarity, Helen Shearin, Louise Baumgras, Emma Brooks, Elsie Lee Sanders, Ruth Bowers, Annie Jackson, May-sie O'Neill, Amanda Vaughn, Belva McGarity, Flora Grimes, Ada May Underwood, Jessie Henderson and Misses Alma Owens and Annie Virginia Millirons.

The Dora Alexander Talley Guards, with Captain Myrtle Hardy, will assist in the presentation of the flag of the United States, and the initiations of candidates. Installation of officers recently elected to fill vacancies will be held.

The Loyalty Club of Maple Grove No. 86 met recently at Grant park for a picnic dinner. Miss Alma Owens, chairman, was hostess.

Miss Strange Weds James M. Wells

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Strange, of Maysville, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Sarah Wilda Strange, to James Morris Wells, of Atlanta, formerly of Plant City, Fla. The ceremony was performed Saturday, August 16 by Dr. Ellis Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church, in his study in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends.

The bride wore a beige ensemble with brown picture hat and matching accessories. She wore a shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

The bride is the younger daughter of her parents, her only sister being Miss Dorothy Strange. Her maternal grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Sims, of Maysville, and her paternal grandparents are Mrs. S. M. Strange and the late Mr. Strange, of Banks county.

The groom is the youngest son of Mrs. S. C. Wells and the late Mr. Wells, of Plant City, Fla. His brothers are O. C. Wells, of College Park, and E. P. Wells, of Tampa, Fla. His maternal grandparents are Mrs. F. P. McElroy and the late Mr. McElroy, of Hapeville. His paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wells, pioneer settlers of Plant City. The groom attended Georgia Evening College and is now employed by Gaylord Container Corporation.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wells left for a motor trip to Daytona Beach and other points in Florida. After August 24 they will reside at 1081 Columbia avenue, N. E.

Marler Reunion.

The eighteenth Marler family reunion will be held Sunday from 10 to 6 o'clock at Sardis church in Cobb county. H. S. Marler Jr., group president, invites all family members and announces that Mrs. Paul Thomas will keep the record and Mrs. Chessie Barfield Kile will present identification pins. The refreshment committee includes Eugene Allen, D. C. and Carl Marler and Mrs. Mildred Brannon.

Councilman John Marler, of Atlanta, will read the 23d Psalm at dinner and a prayer will be said by volunteers.

J. T. Marler Jr. will be in charge of cars assembling at the hour-house in Marietta from 10 to 12 o'clock.

Minerals Rank High In Nutrition Value

By Ida Jean Kain.

We are a nation of enthusiasts. When we go for something, we go all the way. Now that vitamins have caught the public fancy and are on the tip of everybody's tongue, it's time we paid more attention to the minerals for they are equally important to good nutrition.

Experiments have shown that although the average diet contains fair amounts of iron and phosphorus, it is very deficient in calcium and this mineral is a vital factor in health and looks. Here is what calcium does: It helps to keep you young, extends your prime, and is essential to good musculature and to the structure of bones and teeth. And yet you probably do not eat nearly enough of it.

Science estimates that .8 grams of calcium are needed daily by the adult, 1.0 grams by the infant and small child, and approximately 1.5 grams are needed daily by the growing boy or girl. The best sources of supply for this mineral are milk and cheese.

As far as calcium value goes, whole milk, skim milk, evaporated milk and dried milk are all about on a par. But there is a wide variation in the amounts that can be obtained from different kinds of cheese.

Recently I have had a number of requests for a list of the calcium-rich foods, along with the amounts to be obtained from average servings.

MY DAY: Girl Scouts Practice Outdoor Cooking

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Monday.—We had a lovely drive yesterday. The roads through the Berkshires are always pleasant, and not too frequented. The Western Hemisphere Girl Scout Encampment, near Otis, Mass., is situated on a lake, with plenty of trees to shade the tents and cabins. When we arrived, the girls, representing 24 states and 16 countries, greeted us through three of their representatives and then everyone passed by and shook hands.

After this, we started an inspection of the whole camp, which meant walking for nearly an hour and a half, a pleasant activity after the long drive.

My cousin, Mrs. Lyman Delano, went with me, which made the whole day especially enjoyable. She recently resigned as chairman of the committee which arranges for these international encampments, but she is still vice chairman and has a keen interest in scouting. My friends, Mrs. Arthur Choate and Mrs. Frederick Brooke, were both there and I saw many other familiar faces.

Craft work is carried on in all the tents and the girls do a great deal of swimming, boating and hiking. I thought it particularly good that each unit cooked at least one meal a day and ate it in their own open-air dining room, for this gives a chance for familiarity with outdoor cooking conditions. The girls who live in hemlock trees some distance from the main building, cook their own breakfast and supper.

Camp Bonnie Brae has a stable and a number of horses with a very able teacher in attendance. I think this is the only Girl Scout camp I have ever visited where the girls could learn to ride. It has proved so popular that nearly a hundred girls signed up for this particular activity.

None of them had as many hours on horseback as would be required for really adequate training, but most of them have learned something about the handling and care of horses, a very good foundation on which to build for future horsemanship.

We all lunched together in the main building and I was glad to see again Mrs. Leigh-White from England, who has visited many of the other countries in this hemisphere since we met last year. Mayor Putnam, of Springfield, Mass., was very kind and drove Mrs. Delano and me to the city, while a state trooper drove my car. At the broadcasting station I was presented with a beautiful wooden key to the city. I took part in the broadcast which went out to the other groups of Girl Scouts throughout the country and which, I think, was later repeated to South and Central American countries.

The drive home into a most beautiful sunset sky was unforgettable. I arrived a little after 8, somewhat weary, but very happy to have taken part in this celebration.

Cold Immunity Is Unaffected By Age

By Dr. William Brady.

A reader who has been carrying on her own research on the cause and prevention of what she calls "colds" informs me that according to a book called "You're the Doctor," by Victor Heiser, M.D., but she and I are right about common respiratory infection (crr), for Dr. Heiser seems convinced of the communicable character of "catarrh," sore throat, bronchitis, pneumonia, and the like, but at the same time he says, according to this reader, that "cold air may crack the mucous lining if it is too cold."

On that crack the reader bases her determination to continue her research. She says she is glad she began the research, for she is learning a great deal, and I all interests her personality because she is subject to bronchitis.

The reader quotes Dr. Heiser: "The mystery remains why one person gets a cold and another does not." (It is as much a mystery why one person gets coccidia, rich or arrested and another does not.)

Well, we're off again, and summer only half over.

Just how much truth is there in the general observation and inference that immunity to the crr increases with age? Very little, when you think it over. At first glance you may be inclined to agree with the fact that younger folk get around more and hence are more frequently and more intimately exposed to infection than older persons. They get caught in the conversational spray, to say nothing of cough or sneeze spray.

In reference to the occurrence of pneumonia, it is fair to infer from the statistics that aged persons are more likely to catch it than the young and middle age, although the very young (children under six years of age) seem as likely to catch it as are the very old.

The apparent decline in natural immunity to pneumonia with advancing years is one of the strongest props of the catching cold delusion. We'll have a go at this frail prop shortly.

Girl Must Recognize a "Line" And Give It Casual Treatment

Dear Dixie:

By DIXIE GEORGE.

I have been going with a boy for three years and until three months ago we were engaged. Since then he has said nothing about us marrying. We still go together and he has told me he loves me more than any girl he has gone with. We had a fuss about three weeks ago, and he still tells me he loves me, but he just does not seem to care so much about talking as he did before. When we go out, he always talks to the other girls when I am around. I try to act as though I do not care and I talk to other boys, but I do not care about being with anyone but him. He has always been very jealous of me. What can I do to hurt him, or bring him back?

WORRIED DOT.

The thing for you to do is to let him see that what he does has no effect upon you in the least. No doubt, the reason he treats you as you say he does, is because he sees that it worries you and keeps you upset. When he tells you he loves you better than any girl he knows, don't make fun of his affection and do not ridicule him, but just let him know that you weren't born yesterday and that you are taking what he says with a grain of salt. Actions speak louder than words, so let him prove his love for you by other means than by telling you.

In some of his more ardent moments of declaring his love for you, tell him that it was about time he was proving what he says. Don't mention the subject of marriage until he does and then let him do most of the talking. As for him talking to the other girls, that is all right, and I do not think there is anything to worry about there. You should be smart ough to talk to the other boys whether you enjoy it or not. A smart girl never shows her feelings, nor does she wear her heart upon her sleeve.

WORKING IN GROUPS DEVELOPS FRIENDSHIPS

Dear Dixie:

I have difficulty getting and keeping a job due to defective hearing, and for this reason I am dependent upon my sister for support. I really want to work and become independent, but whenever I get a job it never lasts more than a few days because of my hearing. Can you suggest any line of work I might do which does not require good hearing?

A READER.

I am 22 years old and have had very few dates. I am not beautiful, but I am a good sport and have been told that I have a good disposition. Please tell me how to meet friends of both sexes.

If possible, I think you should have some medical treatment. And then, too, there is some attachment which one can wear these days to aid their hearing.

With the aid of one of these—which are very small and not very noticeable, I think that you would be able to carry on in some position. You gave no hint as to your qualifications, so I can hardly suggest anything definite, but I think I think that a place where the work requires a great deal of desk work and not so much conversation would be very good.

As for meeting people and going out, I think the thing for you to do is to go places where other people go. Join groups which will bring you in contact with others. Go out, meet people, and try to associate yourself with people who are doing things in that way you will be called upon for service and one thing always leads to another. Above all do not sit home and expect the world to come find you. At least go out and meet it half way.

WILSON'S Weekly RECIPES

This month, as Wilson & Co. celebrates its 25th Anniversary, nutritionists are discussing the vital role meat plays in a nation's health. But homemakers know that there is just one way to get folks to eat the meat they need—make it so good to eat, it can't be resisted. Your job of feeding your family is easier today because in the past 25 years Wilson & Co. has improved one meat after another—making each one tastier, tenderer—in short, "the meat you love to eat."

Only WILSON & Co. makes Certified Tender Made Ham the ham you cut with a fork

DELICIOUS VITAMINS

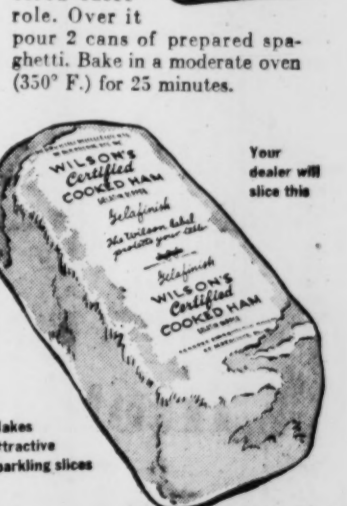

Vitamins for health, yes! But one of Wilson & Co.'s contributions to better living for America has been to make vitamins delicious. Take Wilson & Co.'s MOR, that juicy, tender, tastier, cured pork shoulder meat—one can of MOR provides enough vitamin B<sub>1</sub> (Thiamin) for the average daily requirements of 2 to 3 people.

SAVE-A-WIFE DINNER

Since Wilson & Co.'s highest aim has been to bring you better food and simpler cooking, why not celebrate this, their 25th Anniversary, with one of the easiest dinners ever prepared?

Fresh Fruit Salad
MOR and Spaghetti with sauce
New York Ice Cream Beverage

Try serving your salad first—refreshing, hot weather practice. Open one can of MOR and place in a buttered casserole. Over it pour 2 cans of prepared spaghetti. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 25 minutes.

SPARKLING GELATINIZED GLAMORIZES COLD MEAT PLATTERS

After perfecting extra-delicious boneless cooked hams, Wilson & Co. developed "Gelaflinash," a pure, transparent, edible gelatin coating which brings you these choice hams with all their rich flavor and juiciness sealed in. Ask your dealer for "Wilson's Certified Cooked Ham in Gelaflinash," plain or caramel. You'll enjoy its unusual tastiness as well as the sparkle it adds to your cold meat platter.

Gelaflinash is another Wilson & Co. accomplishment for which you and I can congratulate them on this, their Silver Anniversary. See you next week, G. R.

Memphis Hands Fading Crackers Third Straight Defeat, 7 to 4

All in the Game

BY JACK TROY

One Good Turn, Etc. Yes, sir. One good turn deserves another. The United Service Organization is $50 better off today because of the thoughtfulness of G. H. A. Thomas, genial proprietor of the Black Rock Country Club, and Mr. Thomas, himself, has a new suit of clothes because of the thoughtfulness of club members.

There is no relation to the events except that both were products of the same party.

Black Rock members have regular fish fries, and proceeds from the last one were set aside for the U. S. O. by Mr. Thomas. It was his birthday but little did he realize that the members knew it.

In fact, Mr. Thomas was a little tired after the day's work and almost missed the highlight of the party.

Just before the floor show members called Mr. Thomas down to take a bow and accept the symbol of their esteem, which, in this case, was haberdashery of the finest cut.

Yesterday Mr. Thomas dropped in for a visit and turned over his contribution for the U. S. O. Officials expressed gratitude for this bit of public spiritedness.

Fighting Finish When I go fishing around Atlanta it's usually with the same attitude that I drop in at East Lake, Capital City, Ansley, Druid Hills, et al., for a round of golf. There isn't much thought of results, but simply the exercise involved.

So you could have knocked John Martin and me over with a 10-ton truck yesterday when a Bronco Bass of the two-pound variety struck my lure out at Norris lake.

It struck with about the same effect as if one were playing catch with a softball and someone suddenly rung in a 16-pound shotput. I wasn't looking for anything larger than a shiner or medium-sized bream.

So, in this state of mind, a two-pound big-mouth bass immediately assumed the fighting proportion of a full-grown tarpon.

I still don't know how I was able to get it ashore. I almost made the mistake of trying to get it out of the water without reaching down and putting a hand on it. A bass doesn't take kindly to leaving its native elements and often will shake a plug quicker than you can pronounce, Joe Domnanovich.

With the aid of John Martin's expert coaching and a little fast reel-winding on my own part, old Bronco Bass eventually was boated—and for the next 30 or 60 minutes we sat around admiring the monster.

A two-pound bass caught around Atlanta is just about the equal of a 10-pounder caught elsewhere. That is, under present conditions.

At some future date it may be commonplace. We're all working toward that end.

Natural Slump If our noble lads, the Crackers, don't shake their batting slump soon folks are going to believe those silly stories that the boys are laying down.

The reason why the slump is so noticeable is because of the torrid pace the club has maintained for most of the season. It just doesn't seem reasonable, in the light of earlier accomplishments, that the Crackers can't win most of their games.

Percentage has caught up with the boys and chances are they'll be in top form again long before time for the Shaughnessy play-offs. The team is too well balanced to remain in a batting slump indefinitely.

Doc's Coming Back There doesn't seem to be any doubt, speaking of baseball, that James Thompson (Doc) Prothro will be back in the Southern League as manager of the Memphis Chicks next season. There is a very definite movement afoot to make Coach Lobert the new Philly manager and, besides, Doc Prothro figures life too short to waste any more of his on such a hopeless proposition. The scrappy Prothro always has turned out pennant contenders when he had a fighting chance.

Make a note to try a bottle of Barclay's Private Stock Straight Rye Whiskey. You'll be mighty glad you did. It's only $1.15 a pint and 60c a half pint... a real buy!

Chicks Score Three in 8th To Break Tie

Stout Faces Carpenter in Final Game of Series Tonight.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 20.—The Chicks came up with another big eighth inning tonight and made it three straight over the Crackers by a 7-to-4 count.

Although Wimpy Willis and Emilie Lochbaum each allowed 11 hits, the Chick left-hander scattered his more effectively. The Chicks bunched three hits in the fourth and four in the eighth to gain the victory. Atlanta twice barged into the lead, only to be overcome.

The teams meet in the final of the series tomorrow night with Lewis Carpenter due to go for Memphis against Allyn Stout of the Crackers.

RAMBERT, HODGE COLLIDE. No sooner had the game started than an accident marred proceedings. With Pep Rambert on first, Ryan drove to Piet, who tossed to second to force Rambert. Pep ran full tilt into Second Baseman Turst Hodge, of the Chicks, and both went down.

Hodge was first up, but limping badly. Both stayed in the game, although considerably shaken up.

Atlanta got a run in the second. Marshall doubled off the right field fence and scored on Richards' single into center before George hit into a double play.

Their guns muffled by Lochbaum for three innings, the Chicks got away in the fourth with a concerted hitting barrage. Hafez walked and went to third on Naylor's single, Naylor taking second on the throw to third. Fugit's long crack that Bates caught scored Hafez and moved Naylor to third. Then Russell hit the right center wall for two bases, scoring Naylor. Piet's single scored Russell. The next two men flied out.

LOCHBAUM SCORES.

The Crackers picked up a lucky run in the fifth. Lochbaum singled into right and went to second while Russell muffed the ball. Bates got a hit on a grounder that crippled Hodge couldn't quite reach. Rambert's topped grounder to Willis found the pitcher holding the ball too late to make a play at any base, and the sacks were full. Ryan's long fly to right scored Lochbaum and Rikard went to the right center wall to pull down Burge's terrific smash.

The Crackers went back in front in the seventh. Lochbaum singled past Hodge and Hodge booted Bates' hopper. Rambert and Ryan fanned, but Burge and Glock hit successive singles to bring home two runs before Marshall grounded out to Hafez.

The Chicks pulled even in their half of the seventh. Smith singled, went to second on Willis' sacrifice, to third on Rikard's long fly to center and home when Lochbaum cut loose a wild pitch.

And the eighth put Memphis on top once more. Fugit tripled to deep right center, and Russell doubled into left to score him. Piet beat out a hit to short without Russell advancing. Smith forced Piet, but Willis brought in two runs with a triple to right center.

Brooklyn Obtains Vet Larry French

BROOKLYN, Aug. 20.—(P)—The Brooklyn Dodgers announced today they had acquired Larry French, veteran southpaw pitcher, from the Chicago Cubs on waivers and that he would report to Manager Leo Durocher this afternoon.

The addition of French, who won five and lost 14 for the Cubs, gives the Dodgers a left-handed hurler considered necessary by Durocher in the drive for the pennant.

To make room for French, the Dodgers sent Outfielder Tom Tatum, recently obtained from Nashville, to their Montreal farm in the International League.

Pels Take 3d Straight From Smokies; Rocks Shell Lookouts.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 20.—(P)—Vito Tamulis turned in a well-pitched game to give the Vols a 5-1 win over Birmingham in the opening game tonight, while Frank Papish did the same for the Barons in the second to win, 6-2, over Nashville.

Tamulis, the major league cast-off, held the Barons to seven blows while his mates collected 10. In the second game, the hits were identically reversed with Papish on the winning end.

PELS 5; SMOKIES 4.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 20.—New Orleans Pelicans swept their third straight from the disintegrating Knoxville Smokies with a 6-to-4 victory in 10 innings today to shove the locals a little deeper into the abyss.

Vernon Sheller, outfielder recalled recently by the Smokies from the Appalachian League, smacked a single, double and a home run. His circuit clout tied the game at 4-4 in the ninth, but there were no cheers emitting from the 6,000 vacant spots in the stands.

The third-place Pels spurred in the tenth to score two runs on a walk, sacrifice and a double to push ahead.

Crackers To Train at Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 20.—(P)—The Savannah Indians have renewed their working agreement with Atlanta's Crackers and will remain a home-owned baseball club in the South Atlantic League.

That is what Indian Manager Martin (Chick) Autry announced today following conferences with President Earl Mann, of the Cracker club in the Southern Association.

Autry said the Crackers would again train here in 1942's spring. All negotiations for sale of the franchise now held by the Savannah Baseball and Amusement Company have been called off, he declared.

Frisch Suspends And Fines Hurler

BROOKLYN, Aug. 20.—(P)—Joe Sullivan, left-handed pitcher for the Pittsburgh Pirates, was fined $200, suspended for 30 days and sent home by Manager Frank Frisch today for breaking training.

Sullivan started the first game of yesterday's double-header and was knocked out in the first inning after giving up seven runs.

Frankie Frisch's vaudeville act of raising an umbrella during the second game of yesterday's rainy doubleheader with the Dodgers cost the Pittsburgh manager $50.

Miss Hill Gets 86 for Low Net

Miss Gwen Hill, with an 86, scored the low net in the first division yesterday afternoon at the Bobby Jones course in the Metropolitan Women Golfers' Association play. The first division low gross, a 96, was scored by Mrs. J. O. Rhyne.

In the second division Mrs. A. M. Dimmock and Mrs. W. M. Robertson scored the low gross and low net.

Two special prizes were awarded to Mrs. C. G. Caspers and Mrs. J. F. Kressler.

Starting Times Help Atlantans In U.S. Amateur

Georgia's five representatives in the National Amateur golf tournament at Omaha, Neb., drew good starting times for the 36-hole qualifying test to be held Monday and Tuesday.

The pairings and starting times were released by the United States Golf Association. The list includes 29 southerners, with Dick Chapman, defending champion from Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Alabama.

Private Charlie Yates, former British Amateur champ, who is stationed at Camp Wheeler, Macon, will play with Duffy McCullough, runner-up last year, and Johnny Goodman, former United States Open and Amateur cham-

The Secret of the Marshbanks

Mrs. Porter's Will Includes Cherry. Cherry Learns the Whole Truth

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Synopsis of preceding chapters: Charlotte (Cherry) Rawlings, an orphan, has been at Saint Dorothea's convent school since she was seven years old. She knows almost nothing about her early history but has gradually realized that like the other girls at the school she has no family, and she questions whether she has the right to her father's name. Judge Judson Marshbanks and Emma Haskell are her co-guardians. When she is twenty, Marshbanks tells her that Emma has gotten her a secretarial position in San Francisco with old Mrs. Porteous Porter, who is wealthy and a semi-invalid. She goes first to the Marshbanks mansion and dines alone with the judge as Fran, his young wife, and his niece Amy are dining with Kelly Coates, an artist, drops in and Fran and Amy stop on their way out. As they leave Cherry hears laughing and reference to her convent clothes and she is bitter. Life with Mrs. Porter is monotonous and she is thrilled when Kelly, horseback riding in the park with Fran, stops to talk with her while she is moping over her job. Later, Kelly sends her a box of candy and she is jealous when she sees him with Fran at a party given by Mrs. Porter. He stops to talk with her and she bursts out that she will never tell her secret because she is a Saint Dorothea's girl. Emma tells Cherry that her sister Charlotte was Cherry's mother. Kelly picks up Cherry in his old car to "chaperon" Fran on a visit to his Sausalito studio. Cherry can see that Kelly is very much in love with Fran. Mrs. Porter dies. Fran attends the funeral with the Marshbanks and after the services Cherry sees Kelly across the street.

INSTALLMENT XVI

"I'm ashamed to say," Cherry answered laughing, "that I'm going to a movie in the daytime! I've been shut up for days, and there's been so much talk about treatments and oxygen and all the rest of it that I sort of want to distract myself."

"I'm going with you," said Amy. "Funerals give me the horrors. Wait for me; I'll get my coat!"

She dashed upstairs again just as the big Marshbanks car drove up and Fran got out. She looked weary and very pale in her fresh black, but she was smiling as she put her hand on her husband's arm.

"She's seen Kelly; they've had lunch together," Cherry thought instantly.

"Where've you been, my dear?" the judge asked casually.

"I suppose it was scandalous not to go to the cemetery and see the whole funeral thing," Fran said, avoiding a direct answer. "But there were things I had to do, and I just ran out on it!"

"He's probably crazier about her than she is about him," Cherry said when Amy brought the subject to Kelly and Fran a day or two later.

"You never can tell with Fran's deep," Amy answered. She had to come to the Porter house by appointment on this occasion; it was the afternoon when Mrs. Porter's will was to be read. Two quiet elderly women were there from Pasadena; cousins, Emma told Cherry, who had been supported by their rich relative for years. The judge was coming, and surprisingly Amy had been notified to be present.

"She must have left you some money," Cherry surmised, "or they wouldn't have asked you to come."

Emma put her head in the door and told both girls to come downstairs.

"Me, too?" Cherry asked.

"Yes, I think so. Everyone in the house," Emma said briefly and vanished. Cherry and Amy followed immediately to the library, where chairs had been set in a solemn semicircle to face the wide, flat mahogany desk at which the lawyer sat. Judge Marshbanks was near him; he smiled at the girls as they came in, and at the household staff, even including the Chinese cook and his helper as they filed in and took seats. Almost at once the will was opened.

Their late employer had remembered them all, leaving to every servant a sum approximating a thousand dollars for each year in her service, and for Emma's eleven years of faithfulness a round twenty-five thousand. Cherry was stupefied to hear her own name read out as beneficiary for a legacy of fifteen hundred.

The old house was to be given to the city as a museum. Everything in the way of personal belongings, upstairs furnishings and the bulk of the estate were left to the granddaughter of her beloved old friend, Amelia Wellington, Amy Marshbanks.

There were hundreds of bequests, some enormous. Fifty thousand dollars to an orphanage; fifty thousand more for a chapel to be added to the cathedral.

dral; fifty thousand apiece to the indigent cousins from Pasadena. Judge Marshbanks warned Amy that the entire estate might easily be absorbed by these magnificent gestures.

"She lost a great deal of money in twenty-nine," said the judge, "and at the advice of her attorney and myself she put a lot more into annuities shortly afterward. Those stop with her life, of course."

"What are your plans, Cherry?" Judge Marshbanks inquired.

"I haven't had time to make plans," said Cherry, "but I think I will go to college. I'm 20 years old, and I feel as if I didn't know anything."

"Well," the judge said, "that's not a bad idea. It will get you among people your own age, shake you up, put you on your own—yes, that's a good plan. Berkeley?"

"Stanford, I thought."

"Why not?" he agreed. "Wait a minute; wait a minute," he added. "I know a nice place down there where you might like to stay. Lots of youngsters in the family; you wouldn't feel so strange. What does Emma think of this? Have you talked to her?"

"Aunt Emma and I talked the night Mrs. Porter was so ill, the last night but one—Cherry was beginning when Amy put in an animated interruption:

"D'you call her 'Aunt Emma'?"

"Well, yes, I do—sometimes," Cherry's face turned toward the fire flamed until the tips of her ears were red. The title had slipped out inadvertently; she presently glanced at the judge and read perfect comprehension in his look.

"We were sitting upstairs waiting for the doctors to come out of Mrs. Porter's room," she resumed her story, "and I said I hoped she would get well, and Emma said she was sure she wouldn't. So then we talked of what we would do, and Emma's going up into Mendocino, where she has a little place, and retire—not work any more. She says she wants a few chickens and a vegetable garden, that she's tired of the city."

"Well, I should think Emma'd be fixed well enough for that," the judge said again with an approving nod. And then with a glance at the doorway through which Amy had disappeared in quest of her coat and hat, he added, "So she told you about your mother, eh?"

"A month ago," "Shook to you?" "Oh, no, I think," Cherry confessed honestly, "I had been dreaming—imagining that I might have—well, different relations. I always thought Emma was my mother's nurse. But we—we like each other."

"You're a nice girl," the man commented, as if thinking aloud, his half-closed eyes upon her. Cherry flushed with pleasure; her little laugh was proud and embarrassed.

"Did you—did you ever see my mother? Didn't you say you hadn't?" she asked, sobering again.

"No," he felt thoughtful; his linked hands dropped between his knees, his eyes on the fire. "No," he said, "for several years after I married," he said. "But I knew she was very young and very trusting—she was not much older than you are now, when you were born, Cherry. In fact, she was younger."

"And you mustn't," he went on after a moment, "you mustn't blame your father too much. He was goodhearted; he was a decent fellow in so many ways. But always ungenerous—unable to think out consequences! All through our boyhood it was Fred who got into trouble and I who got into worse trouble trying to get him out. He followed any impulse; he was sure everything would always come out right. I've always thought," the kind, quiet voice went on, "that what happened between him and your mother was the result of a single moment of wild emotion—two young things completely deprived for the moment of reason—What is it, Cherry? What's the matter, my child?"

She had gotten to her feet, reeling, ashen-faced, one hand gripping the back of a chair.

"You said—you said—" she whispered, "that—that your brother Fred—Amy's father..."

There was a silence. The judge was standing now, too, his face as shocked as her own.

"You said that Emma had told you!"

"Yes, but not that! Not that! She only said my mother—she didn't tell me anything—she said..."

"Cherry!" The man's arm was about her shoulders. "Sit down," he said, "and talk with me a moment. My dear child, you must not take it this way! I'm sorry—I'm terribly sorry that I've shocked you!"

She was breathing hard, but she was quieter. Her eyes, very big in her pale face, met his courageously.

"It's all right," she said. "I ought to know. I ought to have known before!"

And for a full long moment of silence they looked at each other, and did not speak.

"Emma was my father's nurse and my mother's housekeeper," the man presently said. "She was always a superior person, you can see that. She had been Fred's nurse and mine in the hospital when we were boys, had been widowed and came back as my father's nurse. Her sister Charlotte was much younger, 10 or 12 years younger; she met my brother, naturally, she used to be in the house a good deal; Fred was always around. He was married; his wife was expecting a baby of her own when all this happened. There was nothing to be done except make her comfortable and provide for the child. Amy's fortune—you understand?—has nothing to do with my brother. That came through the mother's father; her grandfather 'Ellington' left that to her. But what Fred could do, he did."

"The money I have been administering for you was left you by my brother—your father—and in reference to this college plan of yours," Judson Marshbanks went on, in an easier tone but still watching her keenly and anxiously. "I want to remind you that we have a balance—a comfortable balance, and any profession you would like to take up..."

She was not listening. She seemed like a girl made of stone.

"So you see that I am your uncle really and truly," the judge said lightly, affectionately, after a pause.

"I know," she whispered with white lips. And then, with a sudden wince of pain that contracted her young face; "Has anyone told Amy? Does Amy know?"

"No. Nobody knows. My mother, myself, Emma. Not another soul."

"Your mother! She was talking of me, then, when she said she wouldn't have me in the house!" "Did you say that?" he asked with a little frown. "Well, you must forgive a proud, unreasonable old woman. Your grandmother, too, Cherry."

"My grandmother!" Her eyes were dark with bitter thought. "I think—thank you so much—but I think I'll go upstairs. I'm tired," Cherry faltered, and was instantly in his arms sobbing against his shoulder. His hand patted her. "I know," he said. "I know. It's very hard!"

Almost immediately she stopped crying, gulped, fumbled for her handkerchief. "Amy's calling you!" she said thickly, and in another moment she was gone.

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Between 10:19 a. m. and 2:22 p. m. favors financial dealings with the public and for dealings in matters of art. During the entire day guard against extravagance or increasing your expenses.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Before 11:31 a. m. favors travel, quick decisions and changes. After 11:31 a. m. favors general business interests and for making harmonious arrangements with others.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—An auspicious day for trying to advance yourself or for seeking favors. After 9:48 p. m. any venture that requires enthusiasm should not be advanced.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—The entire day favors social matters, partnership affairs, financial interests and dealings with the public, with the best aspects operating after 10:12 a. m.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—The entire day through 11:19 p. m. favors promoting your personal interests vigorously. Business correspondence, literary affairs, trips and interviews are favored until evening. The evening hours favor sticking to routine.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—Plan to get in your best work, or ask favors before 12:32 p. m. An auspicious day for dealings with those in professional pursuits, banking, educational work and finances.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—After 10:17 a. m. is an excellent time for making definite decisions and finishing up matters that have already been started. The evening hours past 1:30 p. m. favor social activities and romantic affairs.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—Your hopes may be depleted and a feeling of pessimism is likely to surround you before 11 a. m. and 3:56 p. m. you should work out plans with favor. After 3:56 p. m. favors work of an original nature, dealings with people of an inventive and creative disposition. However, be cautious around liquids.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—After 9:56 a. m. favors agreements, contracts, changes, correspondence. After 9 p. m. is especially careful concerning accidents.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—The hours previous to 2:32 p. m. favor constructive developments in contracts and contacts with others. An excellent period to promote improvements in out-of-the-ordinary pursuits, for you will feel a mental inspiration which will allow you to plan ahead. Between 2:32 p. m. and until 7:12 p. m. the tendency will likely be toward haste, and therefore avoid taking on obligations and heavy responsibilities.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Harmonious influences abound throughout the entire day, making this an auspicious time for conferences, discussions, messages, new moves, and you can move forward with the expectation of receiving co-operation from others.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—You are likely to feel a strong urge to get something done today, and will feel a desire to put things over in a hurry. If you can harness this force, that is, hold it in bounds and use your urge to do things in a constructive and moderate way, this should be a most favorable period for all important matters. Do all you can to enhance your reputation and elevate your status in life.

Martha Scott And Barrymore To Visit Mike

Lionel To Sell Real Estate on Vallee Hour; Jose Iturbi Plays.

BY PAUL JONES.
(Radio Editor.)

Two stars of the cinema—one young and pretty Martha Scott, the other old, wrinkled Lionel Barrymore—will take turns at the mike tonight when they are guests on the "Music Hall" and "Rudy Vallee" hours.

For Miss Scott, this will be a first visit, but for Lionel it will be a fourth. Martha is not a stranger to radio audiences, though, as she appeared on the "Treasure Hour—Millions for Defense" over CBS and WGST last week. This time she will be surrounded by Don Ameche, host; Connie Boswell, Bert Lahr, comedian, and Jose Iturbi, noted pianist, among others. This program will be heard over WSB at 3 p. m.

Lionel and brother John will go into the real estate business tonight when they attempt to rope Crooner Vallee in on a house and lot deal. Vallee will be heard in the role of a young lover, who, along with his bride-to-be, is in search for a home. This bit of nonsense will be broadcast over WSB at 9, following the Music Hall show.

Michael West, a radio character familiar to listeners on the CBS "Big Sister" series, will assume importance on August 25. Starting on that day, a new five-times weekly dramatic serial will be heard over CBS, and the title will be "Bright Horizon—the Story of Michael West." Long known as a man of mystery on the "Big Sister" broadcasts, Michael West thus will emerge in his own story, while "Big Sister" continues without him.

Kate Smith is negotiating with screen-star Merle Oberon to appear as her guest on the first broadcast of the 1941-42 season of the Kate Smith Hour. The Song-bird of the South has ordered a special drama written for Miss Oberon and is forwarding a copy of the script to Hollywood from her summer home at Lake Placid, where her noonday commentary series on CBS, "Kate Smith Speaks," originates during the hot months.

Atlanta Wins Prize For 'Quiz Kids' Puzzler

Miss Alice Greene, 19 Prado, N. E., Atlanta, Ga., has been awarded a new portable radio by the sponsors of the Quiz Kids program for sending in a question which was used on the August 13 broadcast.

This is the question which Miss Greene submitted: "You Quiz Kids: have made the word quiz popular. Now, let's see if you can think of some other four-letter words beginning with 'qu.' Quary and quit were mentioned by Cynthia Cline and Gerard Darrow, but no one else could think of any."

Georgia Press Group Meets Today at Toccoa

Governor on Program Tonight; Arnall To Speak Tomorrow.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. TOCCOA, Ga., Aug. 20.—The advance guard of the Georgia Press Association arrived here today to make final plans for the fifty-fifth annual session which opens here tomorrow.

J. C. Seymour, of Atlanta, manager-secretary of the body, arrived today, and Roy McGinty, of Calhoun, president, is expected early tomorrow.

The convention will hold several sessions today, Friday and Saturday at Lake Louise hotel, which will be headquarters.

The meeting will formally get under way today at 2 p. m. when President McGinty will sound the call to order, after which the annual reports will be made by McGinty, Hugh Trotti, treasurer, and Seymour.

A feature of the Friday session will be the address at 9 a. m. by Attorney General Ellis Arnall, and on Saturday, election of officers will be held.

Vice-President Otis Brumby, of the Cobb County Times, Marietta, is slated to be elected president, succeeding Roy McGinty. Political interest will center in the election of a vice-president to succeed Brumby, who, according to custom, will succeed to the presidency two years hence.

Governor Talmadge is on the program Thursday night.

7 More Dead, Brooklyn Fire Toll Rises to 12

Charred Debris Shows 'Nothing in Way of Sabotage.'

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—(P)—Recovery of seven more bodies from debris-littered waters raised to 12 today the known death toll of Monday's Brooklyn waterfront fire which destroyed the Cuba Mail Line freighter Panuco and the pier where she was moored.

Six of the bodies recovered today were those of longshoremen, five of them Negroes, who apparently jumped overboard to escape the fast-spreading flames. The holds of the ship were still too hot to permit search, and police feared some of the 17 men still missing might have been trapped there.

The Brooklyn district attorney's office announced that its investigation of the fire showed "nothing in the way of sabotage."

Assistant District Attorney Edward A. Heffernan, in charge of the inquiry, asserted that investigators believed "carelessness on the part of a worker caused the fire." A cigarette, he said, might have been flipped toward the water and been carried by the wind toward the highly inflammable sisal hemp which had been unloaded from the ship.

A federal board of inquiry, sitting in Manhattan, heard testimony from several witnesses that they had seen no one smoking and that none was allowed. Several witnesses expressed the opinion that a spark from a stove on a lighter tied up at the pier might have ignited the sisal, but skippers of three lighters testified that their stoves were out.

The board adjourned its hearings indefinitely at the end of today's session.

Investigators aboard the vessel found three "bomblike" cylinders on the afterdeck. They soaked them in oil, opened them and found in the center a substance resembling mercury.

Suspicion of sabotage was dispelled, however, when they found more than 100 similar cylinders aboard, presumably part of the cargo or ship's gear.

Y. W. Faith Dies

In House of Birth

Young William Faith, 75, of Route 1, Decatur, died yesterday at the residence in which he was born, after a long illness. He was a member of the Stamps Chapel Baptist church for more than 50 years.

Surviving are his wife; three daughters, Mrs. O. L. Chewing, of Lithonia; Mrs. S. O. King and Mrs. H. D. Russell; six sons, Curtis, J. H., Frank, Hunter, Virgil and L. E. Faith, all of Decatur; one sister-in-law, Mrs. Katie Faith, of Atlanta, and two brothers, Earle and Dave Faith, of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Hardeman Primitive Baptist church with Elder Walter Allen and the Rev. Jack McWilliams officiating. Burial will be in the churchyard.

spreading flames. The holds of the ship were still too hot to permit overboard to escape the fast-

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When function of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging headache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Reeves To Appeal To Personnel Body

W. F. Reeves, city building inspector for nearly 22 years, who was dismissed on August 8 by Charles J. Bowen, city inspector of buildings, on charges of neglect of duty and incompetence, will take his appeal to the city personnel board at 11 o'clock Tuesday.

Reeves, 70 years old, was arrested on August 7 charged with driving his automobile while intoxicated, and was fined $52 by Councilman Howard Haire, who was acting recorder. Stafford W. Graydon, personnel director, set the time for the hearing after a conference with City Attorney Jack C. Savage. Reeves has retained Samuel Green Jr. as his attorney.

LAGRANGE COURT. LAGRANGE, Ga., Aug. 20.—The September term of LaGrange city court is scheduled for Saturday, September 6, for the appearance docket, and Monday, September 8, for criminal docket, according to John A. Carley, clerk. There are 11 cases listed on the
